New pool to open June 1

The new pool at Sikeston Country Club is in the final stages of completion and is scheduled to open June 1. According to Theon Grojean, president of the contracting firm building the pool, its dimensions are 42.5 feet by 75 feet with a 30 by 35- foot diving area nine feet three inches deep and two one-meter diving boards. John Heacox will be the pool manager. (Daily Standard photo)

Ford sees new era of firmness

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford said today he senses the United States may be entering a new era of firmness, responding to challenges and being ready to "stick with it" when faced with world problems.

Partly by its actions in the Mayaguez affair, he told European newsmen in a White House interview, the nation is resisting a tendency to drift into neo-isolationism and is prepared "to act decisively."

The President acknowledged that at times the United States has isolationist tendencies. He traced recent polls reflecting this mood to Vietnam, but added: "The American people are getting out from under that trauma."

Reflecting on the rescue of the U.S. container ship Mayaguez and its 39-man crew last week from Cambodian abductors, Ford said it offered "firm assurance that the United States is capable and has the will to act in emergencies."

He described the incident as "a clear, clear indication we are not only strong but have the will to move quickly."

At the conclusion of the 50-minute interview, for relay by satellite to television stations in Europe, Ford was asked if he had succeeded in placing a Ford stamp on his administration during his nine months in office.

"I think I have taken steps in that direction..." he said. "We have a Ford energy program; we have a Ford economic program; we're making substantial headway in building on past foreign policies."

As his administration works on strategic arms limitation negotiations and other matters, he said, "I think you will see increasing evidence here and abroad of a Ford presidency."

On other matters, Ford made these observations:

—He rejects congressional suggestions that detente is tilted in favor of the Soviet Union. "I strongly disagree with that viewpoint," the President said, and those who assert it "are not correct."

Where points of friction arise with the Soviet Union, he said, "we intend to be very firm, but detente gives us an opportunity to be flexible."

Ford said he believed he and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev would have to personally make some of the final decisions in the effort to reach a new Strategic Arms Limitation Agreement.

He anticipated this would occur when Brezhnev visits the United States, "hopefully this fall."

—His impression is "that the Western alliance is very strong

Dexter to vote June 24 on city manager plan

DEXTER — Residents will go to the polls June 24 to decide whether Dexter will retain the mayor-council form of government or adopt a new city manager type of government. The decision to call the election was made in a special meeting of the City Council Wednesday night.

The special meeting was called after members of the Citizens Betterment Committee presented a petition at Monday night's City Council meeting. The petition contains 191 signatures and asks for a city manager form of government.

One hundred and fifty signatures are required to call such an election.

The petition was checked by city attorney Paul McGhee and a committee of three aldermen who found the petition to be legal and in order.

The matter has caused considerable controversy for the past year. A previous petition was submitted several months ago, but was disregarded after it was found it lacked the required number of registered voters.

Noted architect dies

R. Paul Buchmueller

R. Paul Buchmueller, 74, of 108 W.Salcedo Road, a well-known Sikeston architect, died at 12:50 a.m. today after an extended illness.

He was born Oct. 6, 1900 in St. Louis, where he was educated and received a bachelor of architecture degree at Washington University.

He was married to the former Jane Buckley, who preceded him in death Aug. 17, 1967.

He was president of the architectural - engineering firm of Buchmueller, Whitworth, Foust and Stearnes, Inc. and had been in business in Sikeston since 1946. In 1969, he opened an office in Cape Girardeau. Buchmueller designed many schools, churches and homes throughout Southeast Missouri.

A member of the American Institute of Architects, he served as a member of the Registration Board for Architects, Engineers and Land Surveyors of Missouri for 18 years — most recently as chairman of the architectural

Patrol bill expected to pass House soon

A bill authorizing at least $125,000 for the construction of a permanent highway patrol headquarters in the Sikeston area is expected to clear the House of Representatives next week, Rep. C. F. Cline, Democrat of Sikeston said today.

Cline said the building will be constructed on seven acres of land at the junction of Highway 62 and Route CC in Mississippi County. The state has reached an agreement with the property owner to buy the land.

The structure will be a brick building housing 33 employes for a troop or zone covering the six counties of Pemiscot, Dunklin, New Madrid, Mississippi, Scott, Stoddard and Bollinger.

Cline said he hopes eventually to have $175,000 authorized for the building. In addition, he said, the building can be expanded at a later date if necessary.

He said the location was chosen because it provides easy access to both Interstate highways 55 and 57 and because the site permits a higher radio tower. A site previous considered was closer to the Sikeston Airport and the height of the radio tower would have been restricted because it interfered with the airport landing pattern.

Cline said he expects the building to be in operation by next summer.

Real credit of the funding should go to Rep. Gene Copeland of New Madrid, senior member of the House Appropriation Committee, Cline said. He credited Copeland with being instrumental in prying loose the necessary funding.

Another headquarters building is being built in Joplin, Cline said.

Cline said he had expected the bill to clear the House Thursday, but the House became mired in debate over a rock festival bill and was unable to act.

After the bill clears the House, it will go to the Senate.

Graduation to be telecast

Graduation exercises for 258 Sikeston High School seniors are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. today in the field house.

The event will be telecast live over Channel 6 of the cable television system and will be taped to be shown later.

No publication Monday

The Daily Standard will not be published Monday in observance of Memorial Day.

The business office will be closed as will all local, state and federal government offices.

Just a scuffle, authorities say

An incident Wednesday at Sikeston Middle School, which resulted in minor injuries to a white seventh grade boy, was just a scuffle between two boys, Superintendent Sam Harbin said today.

Harbin and school Principal Harley Barnes, who described the events at different times, explained the events as follows. Mike Sales, a black seventh grade boy, and Mike Moyers, a white seventh grader, were dressing prior to physical education class. Sales reportedly flipped the Moyers boy with a towel. The Moyers boy then asked Sales to stop, but Sales did not. Then Sales reportedly picked up Moyers from behind. Moyers asked Sales to let him down and elbowed him. Sales then dropped Moyers who fell and hit his head.

Harbin said the schools often get reports of just such scuffles. He added that contrary to current rumors about this incident, his investigation shows it was nothing more than an accident.

Barnes took signed statements from two witnesses -- both white boys -- and Sales. The boys wrote the statements separately and all describe the incident the same. Moyers' remembrance of the event as he was hurt is vague.

Moyers was taken to a doctor's office and his head was x-rayed. The youth was back in school the next day and reportedly doing fine.

Melvin Moyers, the boy's father, said today that they (he and his wife) believed the incident was a result of two boys scuffling and that getting hurt was an accident. He does not believe that the youths are lying because they are afraid of the blacks. He added that basically the boys do get along; and they believe there was nothing malicious about the incident.

Marshal exchanges shots

Miner Town Marshal Bud Travelstead exchanged shots early today with a man he caught in the act of trying to steal a tractor from Leible Impliment Co., Highway 62 East.

Travelstead said he surprised the man about 2:25 a..m. as he drove his police car through the implement company lot. The man fired a gun and Travelstead said he fired back.

The man then ran to Brewer Equipment Co., next door, where he and Travelstead again exchanged shots. Neither man was hit in the exchange.

Travelstead, the Sikeston police and auxiliary police, and the highway patrol searched the area, but could not find the man after he ran into a nearby junk yard.

The man was wearing a dark shirt, but Travelstead said it was too dark for him to get a good look at the man.

Travelstead said the man was apparently planning to drive the tractor to another location for loading upon a truck. The men did not find a car or truck at the implement company.

Woman hurt by rock thrown into her car

A woman was injured by a rock thrown into her car as she drove on West Malone Avenue about 10:30 p.m. Thursday, according to police.

Mrs. Carletta Boardman, Brown Spur Road, was struck in the left side of the head by a rock thrown by a man standing along the north side of the highway near Rogers Auto Sales. She was treated and released at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital for a cut on the scalp. Police said she required stitches to close the wound.

Mrs. Boardman told police she did not see the man who threw the rock. She said she was hit in the head and went to a house on School Street for help.

A witness told police the man who was throwing the rocks ran into the Sunset area after hitting Mrs. Boardman. A police search failed to locate the man. Police said they found a large rock in the back seat of Mrs. Boardman's car.

He is apparently the same man who threw a rock through the rear window of a car Tuesday night. The incident occurred in the same general area, about 9:30 p.m. No one was injured in that incident.

Shooting is ruled accidental

LILBOURN--The shooting death Thursday night of Lealun Joe Alsup, 23, an unemployed truck driver of 805 Lester St., Kennett, has been ruled accidental by New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton.

Alsup died at 11:45 p.m. at the home of Miss Brenda Sebourn, 21, at Sixth and Hunter streets, from a self inflicted bullet, Clayton said.

According to the coroner, Alsup, Miss Sebourn, Judy Watson, 15, and Bobbie Girtman, 17, of Lilbourn, were playing cards. The witnesses said Alsup went to the bathroom and when he returned he displayed a 7.65 millimeter pistol in a joking manner.

The witnesses told the coroner Alsup pointed the gun toward the ceiling in the direction of Miss Watson and Girtman and said, "Let's make this a fair game," and he pulled the trigger.

The bullet struck Alsup in the right jaw and entered his head, killing him instantly.

The body was taken to Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid and later moved to McDaniel Funeral Home in Kennett.

2 charged following fight at Charleston

CHARLESTON--Two young men have been charged with disturbing the peace by fighting, following an incident Thursday in front of Butler's Liquor Store on W. Market Street.

Jimmie Cleaves, 22, a black, and Jimmie Wyatt, 17, a white youth, of Charleston, were arrested about 4:10 p.m. by officer Walter Westerhold, who was involved in a brief struggle with the two as he attempted to place them under arrest.

One reportedly took a swing at the officer as he attempted to place handcuffs on him and the other, who was lying on the ground, kicked Westherhold on the knee.

Both were tapped on the head with a nightstick before the struggle was over.

Later, at the police station, Wyatt allegedly messed up the rest room where he was washing up and became belligerant when told by Westerhold he had to clean up the mess.

Westerhold said he took the youth by the collar and was taking him back into the restroom when the youth's mother ran into the lobby of the station and jumped on his back.

She was escorted back to the lobby by police officer Charles Martin and Fire Chief Tom McKenzie.

A short time later, Wyatt's father came to the station and reportedly threatened to whip the officer.

SENATORS VOTE FOR RESPONSIBILITY

Of all the irresponsible acts of the present "progressive" 94th Congress, perhaps (but not necessarily) the worst was the passage of the appropriation measure for the new Federal budget.

Just ten years ago the total appropriation for all Federal expenses was about $100 billion. This year, the Congress approved expenses of nearly four times that amount.

Are you earning, and spending, four times more money than you did in 1965? If not that's too bad; because, courtesy of your friendly Representatives in Washington, your tax load is going to be four times bigger — and that doesn't count local and State taxes.

Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina calculated that after adding the estimated $67 plus billion to the Federal Deficit, the taxpayers will pay $32,900,000,000 in interest alone on the Federal debt this year. "That," reports the Senator from North Carolina, "figures out to be $62,595 for every minute of the year."

"Knowing full well that I would be defeated — and I was, indeed, defeated," continues Senator Helms, "I offered an amendment to balance the budget and eliminate that proposed $67.2 billion deficit. I feel that it is important to require Senators to vote for or against a balanced budget. Hopefully, the people back home will, sooner or later, take note of how their Senators vote, and will make themselves heard."

For your information, those Senators who voted FOR the Helms amendment to restrict Federal expenses to match Federal income were James B. Allen (Ala.), Harry F. Byrd (Va.), Carl T. Curtis (Neb.), Paul Fannin (Ariz.), Paul Laxlat (Nev.), Robert Morgan (N. Car.), Strom Thurmond (S. Car.), and John Tower (Tex.). A few others, such as Sen. Barry Goldwater, would have voted for the amendment but they were absent at the time.

For those Senators who claim that "we can't balance the budget," Sen. Helms has a quick retort. "Baloney! All it would take is a little bit of courage."

THE NIGHT THE MISSISSIPPI QUEEN VANISHED

Many a ship has sailed from a port, continued over the horizon and disappeared forever. Ships have been doing this since sailors first started sailing, and it has occurred in practically every ocean and sea in the world. Possibly the weirdest story of all regards the Mississippi Queen. She was luxurious, palatial boat, considered by many to be the finest afloat on the rivers of America. Families used to drive for miles just to watch her pass by with her great paddle wheels churning, and the smoke streaming from her high smokestacks like black velvet ribbons.

The Mississippi Queen departed from Memphis on April 17th, 1873, headed down river to New Orleans. As usual, crowds saw her off. There was cheering; bands played; and other boats piped her on her way with blasts and toots of their own whistles.

All that day, the Queen rushed down the great Mississippi toward her port. Sometimes passing lesser ships, she saluted them with thunderous blasts from her own steam whistle. The small towns perched on the banks of the mighty river saw her pass in all her splendor.

In New Orleans, when the Queen was 12 hours overdue, her owners began to wonder. She had never been late on schedule before. Wonder turned to worry, and the owners telegraphed upriver for news. Various small river towns reported that she had passed during the day; even until midnight. After that — nothing!

COMPULSORY UNIONIZATION

Though the bill granting collective bargaining rights to pubilc employes has had considerable opposition, it has moved ahead in the Missouri Legislature without a snag. When the House passed it last month it slipped through by a bare minimum of 82 votes.

Now it rests with the Senate Committee on Labor and Management Relations. A hearing by this committee is expected soon with the outcome likely to be a favorable recommendation to the Senate. This seems preordained since the committee membership is weighted with those sympathetic to labor — scarcely a climate to foster and even-handed approach for dealing with this controversial H.B. 343.

Not only is the general welfare of the pubilc threatened by this legislation which generates union power, but those public employes who believe they have the right to choose union membership, or turn it down, will be facing compulsory unionization if it becomes law.

Union dues are disguised as "service fees" in the bill. Some 250,000 public employes in the state would have to pay these "fees" as a condition of employment. The total amount of collected "fees" would have clout and afford union officials tremendous advantage in exercising their power over state and local government as they bargain with public employe administrators — administrators elected to represent the best interests of the taxpayers.

There are those who view the bill with apathy becaue they take comfort from a no-strike provision in the bill. But they are indulging in wishful thinking. Illegal strikes have exploded all over the country. Legality is of no concern to the strikers once they are geared up to take action.

Furthermore, a University of Missouri-Columbia law professor and chairman of an advisory committee to Missouri's Department of Labor has said: "We believe there will be strikes no matter what the law says." It's a natural when the bargaining gets tough.

Damaging effects of strikes in the public sector have been clearly documented. Often triggered by unreasonable demands and usually prolonged, ultimately they have been unproductive for everyone concerned. As usual it is the taxpayer who suffers the consequences.

It might be enlightening for Missouri legislators to take a look at the results of the Missouri Opinion Survey recently conducted by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton. Over 55,000 of the questionnaires were returned to him.

The senator said: "This is a response far above the average, one of the best among surveys done by other senators and congressmen."

One of the questions asked Missourians if they would favor "a federal law giving employes of city, county and state governments the right to strike just like employes in private industry."

Sixty-four per cent went on record as opposing such a law, 32 per cent favored it and four per cent gave no response.

This indicates convincingly how the people of the state feel toward strikes by pubilc employes. The respondents were almost equally divided over the question of public employes having the right to organize and bargain collectively for wages. Those in opposition had a very slight edge of six tenths of one percentage point. It is safe to conclude the majority of those favoring collective bargaining rights did so on the grounds that the strike would not be used as a bargaining tool.

Public employes of the state — particularly many teachers — are not in agreement over the provisions of H.B. 343.

This means trouble ahead if the bill should become law. The prime reason for scrapping it is to preclude dictating by union officials to state and local governing units.

WHO KNOWS BEST?

According to a recent opinion poll, the majority of the American people do not believe this country needs another bureaucratic agency to look after consumer interests.

Yet, the 94th Congress seems more determined than any of its predecessors to enact a law creating such an agency, regardless of what the people may want.

According to a nationwide survey of public attitudes conducted by Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, N.J., a majority of American consumers are opposed to creation of a new agency for consumer activities.

Given a choice between creating a new consumer agency or taking steps to make existing consumer agencies (at least 33 operating more than 1,000 consumer-related programs) more effective, the respondents favored strengthening existing agencies by a margin of 75 per cent to 13 per cent.

Of the 13 per cent who favored a new agency, more than half said they would rather forget the whole idea when informed that it would cost $60 million to run the agency its first three years of existence.

These findings are consistent with arguments advanced by such groups as the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S. in opoosing similar bills in recent years.

If the present consumer agencies are not doing the job it is not likely that the problem will be solved by creating still another agency. Bureaucracy doesn't work that way.

Unless consumers speak up, they may find such an agency crammed down their throats. While Congressmen may not believe in polls, they do believe in letters from voters in their home district.

It's up to you. Who knows what's best for you?

SO REVEALING

THE BIOGRAPHER of the Duke of Wellington had but little difficulty in gathering material for his book. The biographer could find plenty of material on what the Duke had done, but he could not find much on what kind of man he was.

And then he found the Duke's old check book stubs. By examining these he gained more insight into the character of Wellington than he had found anywhere else.

The same would be true in our own lives. The places and things for which our money and time go reveal the kind of person we are and what our major interest is.

NECESSARY TREND

Several of the largest U.S. oil companies are recording substantial profit increases. No doubt the shortsighted will be quick to criticize rather than applaud the appearance of oil company prosperity. The longersighted will consider the news in a different light.

Speaking of these profits, The Wall Street Journal comments, "How else can the United States pull itself out of the energy hole if not through an industry that finds itself able to generate the capital that task will require?"

The capital needed to meet tomorrow's petroleum needs is indeed staggering. According to the Chase Manhattan Bank, capital investment by the oil industry will total some $565 billion between 1970 and 1985, and another $35 billion of geological, geophysical and leasing expenses. Also, as The Journal points out, "The reason profits have soared is that the industry has been operating flat out in the production, refining and marketing of oil products. There is no excess capacity in the system and efficiences are at a peak."

Increases in oil company earnings are a prelude to a trend that must come in the petroleum industry. Experts outside the industry estimate that the income growth of the oil business, which has averaged 8.1 percent a year over the past decade, has to go to an annual increase of 16 percent if the industry is to meet the stupendous capital requirements it faces. Learning to understand such figures is a sort of petroleum literacy test that consumers must pass before the country can hope to have a secure energy future.

GLORIOUS DAY

April 29, 1975 was a day of glory for the United States. It got the last of the fleeing Americans and some hundred thousand South Vietnamese safely out of that country with the loss of only two lives. Oh, yes, we nearly forgot, it marked the acknowledged loss of the first war in our history. It lost the confidence of all those who have signed mutual defense agreements with us. It brought to our country and several others, thousands of South Vietnamese and Cambodians who were fleeing the Communists. If they cannot find jobs, will it be our obligation to put them on welfare as we brought them here? It was our obligation to defend them in the war and when our forgiven deserters and draft dodgers ran away we pulled out our main army, quit fighting and in recent weeks quit sending arms and ammuniton to help them defend themselves. Yes, it was a day of glory. We managed to escape the Communists this time. But what will we do when they, or some of their allies, strike directly at us? We'll need help and can't count on those deserters and dodgers the President forgave. And what do you suppose those 50,000 boys who died in Vietnam, whom we hope are in heaven, think of their country's day of glory.

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

Don't Mess with Strom's Boys

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--Inside the Pentagon, it doesn't pay to mess with one of Strom Thurmond's boys.

Lt. Col. Wilfred Ebel found this out. He conducted a study, which rapped one of Thurmond's cronies as a lazy incompetent. There was a snort of annoyance from Old Strom. All of a sudden, Ebel's military career began collapsing around his ears.

Strom Thurmond, of course, is the straight-laced senator from South Carolina, a very model of a reserve major general, the Army's senior retread on Capitol Hill.

He helped to win World War II, and he has five battle stars and 18 decorations to prove it, including the Belgian Order of the Crown and the French Croix de Guerre.

At age 72, he marches through the Senate corridors, ramrod-straight, as if to a military cadence. He is a power on the Senate Armed Services Committee where he fights for the Army with the same star-spangled fervor that he demonstrated on the battlefield.

Certainly, Thurmond is not one for a mere lieutenant colonel to tangle with. The unfortunate Ebel made the mistake of criticizing Maj. Gen. Milnor Roberts, the Army reserves chief, who happens to be one of Thurmond's World War II buddies.

Ebel was ordered to make a confidential study of Roberts' operation. His orders, Ebel has sworn, were to write a "no-holds-barred report."

This is precisely what the foolhardly lieutenant colonel did. He charged that Roberts, in his capacity as head of 730,000 reservists, was given to "intrigue," "indifference" and "lethargy." Roberts also lacked courage on tough decisions, wrote Ebel.

Subsequently, Ebel received a commendation for his "tremendous service" and "personal integrity." But this was before Old Strom spoke to Army Secretary Howard "Bo" Callaway about Ebel.

Callaway has assured us that Thurmond's approach was "low key." The senator passed on some allegations against Ebel. "He just said, 'Look into it,'" recalled Callaway. "There never was a case with less political influence."

Thurmond won't say who cooked up the charges against Ebel and slipped them to him. A classified Army document suggests that Roberts, the subject of Ebel's unflattering report, "may have been the source in this matter."

The Army reserves chief, although conceding he had spoken with both Thurmond and one of his aides about Ebel, denied he was the original purveyor of the rumors.

But from the moment Old Strom gave Ebel the evil eye, the world of the 44-year-old lieutenant colonel began to crumble. Here is the swift sequence of events:

Callaway turned Thurmond's allegations against Ebel over to the Army Inspector General to investigate.

-- Astonishingly, the Inspector General issued a report condemning Ebel for writing a "derogatory" report about Roberts. Yet Ebel's Pentagon superiors had ordered him to prepare a frank report. The Inspector General also made some nitpicking charges about Ebel's putting in voluntary time and misleading the Army on a minor matter.

--Citing the Inspector General's report as an excuse, Callaway dropped Ebel's name from the promotion list. He conceded that he had been "tougher" on Ebel than the Inspector General had recommended but insisted this had nothing to do with Thurmond's intervention.

Ebel had given up a top civil service job to return to the Pentagon. But after he landed on Thurmond's blacklist, he found the Defense Department didn't want him.

Ebel also had hoped to become executive director of the Reserve Officers Association. Instead, this plum went to Roberts. As it happens, Thurmond is an influential past president of the association and wrote them on Roberts' behalf.

Not only did Ebel suddenly find himself under investigation, but his records detailing his 25 years of dedicated service mysteriously disappeared. When he sought information from the Pentagon to defend himself, it was refused.

But when the Army began investigating Ebel because he had put in free time at the Pentagon, this was the last straw. He retained an attorney, Frank Bartimo, the Defense Department's former assistant general counsel, to file charges.

At a closed-door meeting with Pentagon investigators, Bartimo charged that "this horrendous case...affects the very core and heart of the reserve forces.

"Evidence...strongly suggests certain high officials of the Department of the Army have committed crimes and misdemeanors among which are malfeasance...perjury, conspiracy, obstruction of justice...attempt of bribery and blackmail," he declared, according to the confidential transcript.

Now the tables are turned, and the Justice Department is being asked to look at Thurmond, Callaway and company.

Footnote: Both Callaway and Roberts denied any impropriety. Roberts also insisted that Ebel's criticism of his operation was unfair and inaccurate. Thurmond couldn't be reached. But the strong-willed old soldier has said in the past that he has the duty to present any allegations that are brought to his attention. The Inspector General said he had received no pressure from Callaway but had called the shots as he saw them.

Whose Victory?
Charge Hanoi Troops Went On Massive Murder Spree

WASHINGTON--In a recent letter to President Ford, labor chief George Meany predicted that "while the fighting might stop (in Vietnam), the killing would not." He was right. The blood ran like wild water on a suddenly thawed mountain river.

He wasn't guessing. Nor pushing unsubstantiated "atrocity" propaganda. He had confidential cables sent and information gathered by our erstwhile embassy in Saigon. Here is what Meany reports, based on eyewitness accounts:

Approximately 100,000 people trying to cross a river near the Phu Bon border were set upon by North Vietnamese troops who poured mortar and recoilless rifle fire into the crowd.

According to witnesses, all of the 100,000 were either killed or captured. A nun reports that when the convoy passed near the downstream of Dong Cam Dam, soldiers told her the water behind the dam was choked with bodies.

Near Pleiku City, a priest, Father Cong, was killed on the spot when he walked out in front of a group of his parishioners to talk to Vietcong who barred their way.

In Ban Me Thuot, several thousand people were assembled by North Vietnamese troops and told to sit. A local "PRG" cadre walked through the crowd and removed 300 people known to be GVN employes and police. The cadre delivered a harangue accusing the 300 of being American lackeys and spies, and enemies of the people. The 300 were then all shot and killed. The families of the 300 were led out of town. A monk who witnessed the scene reports that he saw mortar explosions in the midst of the people. As the families ran they were shot at.

An officer on the SS Tran-Colorado reports, "Women, children, even a nun, were found to have had their hands and feet blown off or mutilated by the advancing North Vietnamese forces."

On the outskirts of Danang, local VC forces have carried out brutal executions. GVN policemen were beheaded, and groups of soldiers were tied together and killed with grenades.

On March 14, a mixed RVNAF-Civilian group of five or six thousand people trying to get to the coast were set upon by enemy soldiers, who began driving 15 trucks at high speed through the crowd, the drivers apparently trying to kill as many people as they could. Fifty to sixty were thus killed.

The Truong hamlet, near Ban Me Thuot, peopled entirely by 1954 refugees from the North, was attacked by six or seven tanks. After furiously resisting, the hamlet ran out of ammunition and all but a handful of the surviving population took refuge in the local church. Additional enemy tanks rolled in and shelled the church to rubble, killing all inside.

In Quang Tin, they rounded up all of the police force. Some were shot out of hand. With others, they drove nails through their heels, wired them together and led them off to the jungle. That was the last seen of them. Some of the military were also treated in the same way.

The above statements are from George Meany's communications.

After these reports, which I have put down verbatim, the labor chief discloses what the Vietcong did to Vietnam labor leaders. The latter were brutally treated. Many have been arrested. They have disappeared. Some were regional leaders, some headed the transportation union and the equivalent of the Teamsters.

I can verify this. My own sources in the intelligence community say the documented reports coming out of occupied Saigon are as horrendous as those of the outright massacre of 60,000 anti-Communists of all professions and trades on orders from Ho Chi Minh in the early '50s.

Why don't we hear from those who lamented so loudly and talked so lewdly when the U.S. airmen bombed Communist war factories and military supply highways?

Does the blood and pain and heartbreak of anti-Communists count for nothing? They were dead or dying the other Sunday when so many gay thousands went to New York Central Park Sheep Meadow to celebrate the people's victory. What people? Whose victory?

SENATORS VOTE FOR RESPONSIBILITY

Of all the irresponsible acts of the present "progressive" 94th Congress, perhaps (but not necessarily) the worst was the passage of the appropriation measure for the new Federal budget.

Just ten years ago the total appropriation for all Federal expenses was about $100 billion. This year, the Congress approved expenses of nearly four times that amount.

Are you earning, and spending, four times more money than you did in 1965? If not that's too bad; because, courtesy of your friendly Representatives in Washington, your tax load is going to be four times bigger — and that doesn't count local and State taxes.

Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina calculated that after adding the estimated $67 plus billion to the Federal Deficit, the taxpayers will pay $32,900,000,000 in interest alone on the Federal debt this year. "That," reports the Senator from North Carolina, "figures out to be $62,595 for every minute of the year."

"Knowing full well that I would be defeated — and I was, indeed, defeated," continues Senator Helms, "I offered an amendment to balance the budget and eliminate that proposed $67.2 billion deficit. I feel that it is important to require Senators to vote for or against a balanced budget. Hopefully, the people back home will, sooner or later, take note of how their Senators vote, and will make themselves heard."

For your information, those Senators who voted FOR the Helms amendment to restrict Federal expenses to match Federal income were James B. Allen (Ala.), Harry F. Byrd (Va.), Carl T. Curtis (Neb.), Paul Fannin (Ariz.), Paul Laxlat (Nev.), Robert Morgan (N. Car.)., Strom Thurmond (S. Car.), and John Tower (Tex.). A few others, such as Sen. Barry Goldwater, would have voted for the amendment but they were absent at the time.

For those Senators who claim that "we can't balance the budget," Sen. Helms has a quick retort. "Baloney! All it would take is a little bit of courage."

THE NIGHT THE MISSISSIPPI QUEEN VANISHED

Many a ship has sailed from a port, continued over the horizon and disappeared forever. Ships have been doing this since sailors first started sailing, and it has occurred in practically every ocean and sea in the world. Possibly the weirdest story of all regards the Mississippi Queen. She was luxurious, palatial boat, considered by many to be the finest afloat on the rivers of America. Families used to drive for miles just to watch her pass by with her great paddle wheels churning, and the smoke streaming from her high smokestacks like black velvet ribbons.

The Mississippi Queen departed from Memphis on April 17th, 1873, headed down river to New Orleans. As usual, crowds saw her off. There was cheering; bands played; and other boats piped her on her way with blasts and toots of their own whistles.

All that day, the Queen rushed down the great Mississippi toward her port. Sometimes passing lesser ships, she saluted them with thunderous blasts from her own steam whistle. The small towns perched on the banks of the mighty river saw her pass in all her splendor.

In New Orleans, when the Queen was 12 hours overdue, her owners began to wonder. She had never been late on schedule before. Wonder turned to worry, and the owners telegraphed upriver for news. Various small river towns reported that she had passed during the day; even until midnight. After that — nothing!

Given a choice between creating a new consumer agency or taking steps to make existing consumer agencies (at least 33 operating more than 1,000 consumer-related programs) more effective, the respondents favored strengthening existing agencies by a margin of 75 per cent to 13 per cent.

Of the 13 per cent who favored a new agency, more than half said they would rather forget the whole idea when informed that it would cost $60 million to run the agency its first three years of existence.

These findings are consistent with arguments advanced by such groups as the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S. in opoosing similar bills in recent years.

If the present consumer agencies are not doing the job it is not likely that the problem will be solved by creating still another agency. Bureaucracy doesn't work that way.

Unless consumers speak up, they may find such an agency crammed down their throats. While Congressmen may not believe in polls, they do believe in letters from voters in their home district.

It's up to you. Who knows what's best for you?

SO REVEALING

THE BIOGRAPHER of the Duke of Wellington had but little difficulty in gathering material for his book. The biographer could find plenty of material on what the Duke had done, but he could not find much on what kind of man he was.

And then he found the Duke's old check book stubs. By examining these he gained more insight into the character of Wellington than he had found anywhere else.

The same would be true in our own lives. The places and things for which our money and time go reveal the kind of person we are and what our major interest is.

NECESSARY TREND

Several of the largest U.S. oil companies are recording substantial profit increases. No doubt the shortsighted will be quick to criticize rather than applaud the appearance of oil company prosperity. The longersighted will consider the news in a different light.

Speaking of these profits, The Wall Street Journal comments, "How else can the United States pull itself out of the energy hole if not through an industry that finds itself able to generate the capital that task will require?" The capital needed to meet tomorrow's petroleum needs is indeed staggering. According to the Chase Manhattan Bank, capital investment by the oil industry will total some $565 billion between 1970 and 1985, and another $35 billion of geological, geophysical and leasing expenses. Also, as The Journal points out, "The reason profits have soared is that the industry has been operating flat out in the production, refining and marketing of oil products. There is no excess capacity in the system and efficiences are at a peak."

Increases in oil company earnings are a prelude to a trend that must come in the petroleum industry. Experts outside the industry estimate that the income growth of the oil business, which has averaged 8.1 percent a year over the past decade, has to go to an annual increase of 16 percent if the industry is to meet the stupendous capital requirements it faces. Learning to understand such figures is a sort of petroleum literacy test that consumers must pass before the country can hope to have a secure energy future.

GLORIOUS DAY

April 29, 1975 was a day of glory for the United States. It got the last of the fleeing Americans and some hundred thousand South Vietnamese safely out of that country with the loss of only two lives. Oh, yes, we nearly forgot, it marked the acknowledged loss of the first war in our history. It lost the confidence of all those who have signed mutual defense agreements with us. It brought to our country and several others, thousands of South Vietnamese and Cambodians who were fleeing the Communists. If they cannot find jobs, will it be our obligation to put them on welfare as we brought them here? It was our obligation to defend them in the war and when our forgiven deserters and draft dodgers ran away we pulled out our main army, quit fighting and in recent weeks quit sending arms and ammuniton to help them defend themselves. Yes, it was a day of glory. We managed to escape the Communists this time. But what will we do when they, or some of their allies, strike directly at us? We'll need help and can't count on those deserters and dodgers the President forgave. And what do you suppose those 50,000 boys who died in Vietnam, whom we hope are in heaven, think of their country's day of glory.

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

Don't Mess with Strom's Boys
By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--Inside the Pentagon, it doesn't pay to mess with one of Strom Thurmond's boys.

Lt. Col. Wilfred Ebel found this out. He conducted a study, which rapped one of Thurmond's cronies as a lazy incompetent. There was a snort of annoyance from Old Strom. All of a sudden, Ebel's military career began collapsing around his ears.

Strom Thurmond, of course, is the straight-laced senator from South Carolina, a very model of a reserve major general, the Army's senior retread on Capitol Hill.

He helped to win World War II, and he has five battle stars and 18 decorations to prove it, including the Belgian Order of the Crown and the French Croix de Guerre.

At age 72, he marches through the Senate corridors, ramrod-straight, as if to a military cadence. He is a power on the Senate Armed Services Committee where he fights for the Army with the same star-spangled fervor that he demonstrated on the battlefield.

Certainly, Thurmond is not one for a mere lieutenant colonel to tangle with. The unfortunate Ebel made the mistake of criticizing Maj. Gen. Milnor Roberts, the Army reserves chief, who happens to be one of Thurmond's World War II buddies.

Ebel was ordered to make a confidential study of Roberts' operation. His orders, Ebel has sworn, were to write a "no-holds-barred report."

This is precisely what the foolhardly lieutenant colonel did. He charged that Roberts, in his capacity as head of 730,000 reservists, was given to "intrigue," "indifference" and "lethargy." Roberts also lacked courage on tough decisions, wrote Ebel.

Subsequently, Ebel received a commendation for his "tremendous service" and "personal integrity." But this was before Old Strom spoke to Army Secretary Howard "Bo" Callaway about Ebel.

Callaway has assured us that Thurmond's approach was "low key." The senator passed on some allegations against Ebel. "He just said, 'Look into it," recalled Callaway. "There never was a case with less political influence."

Thurmond won't say who cooked up the charges against Ebel and slipped them to him. A classified Army document suggests that Roberts, the subject of Ebel's unflattering report, "may have been the source in this matter."

The Army reserves chief, although conceding he had spoken with both Thurmond and one of his aides about Ebel, denied he was the original purveyor of the rumors.

But from the moment Old Strom gave Ebel the evil eye, the world of the 44-year-old lieutenant colonel began to crumble. Here is the swift sequence of events:

Callaway turned Thurmond's allegations against Ebel over to the Army Inspector General to investigate.

-- Astonishingly, the Inspector General issued a report condemning Ebel for writing a "derogatory" report about Roberts. Yet Ebel's Pentagon superiors had ordered him to prepare a frank report. The Inspector General also made some nitpicking charges about Ebel's putting in voluntary time and misleading the Army on a minor matter.

--Citing the Inspector General's report as an excuse, Callaway dropped Ebel's name from the promotion list. He conceded that he had been "tougher" on Ebel than the Inspector General had recommended but insisted this had nothing to do with Thurmond's intervention.

Ebel had given up a top civil service job to return to the Pentagon. But after he landed on Thurmond's blacklist, he found the Defense Department didn't want him.

Ebel also had hoped to become executive director of the Reserve Officers Association. Instead, this plum went to Roberts. As it happens, Thurmond is an influential past president of the association and wrote them on Roberts' behalf.

Not only did Ebel suddenly find himself under investigation, but his records detailing his 25 years of dedicated service mysteriously disappeared. When he sought information from the Pentagon to defend himself, it was refused.

But when the Army began investigating Ebel because he had put in free time at the Pentagon, this was the last straw. He retained an attorney, Frank Bartimo, the Defense Department's former assistant general counsel, to file charges.

At a closed-door meeting with Pentagon investigators, Bartimo charged that "this horrendous case...affects the very core and heart of the reserve forces.

"Evidence...strongly suggests certain high officials of the Department of the Army have committed crimes and misdemeanors among which are malfeasance...perjury, conspiracy, obstruction of justice...attempt of bribery and blackmail," he declared, according to the confidential transcript.

Now the tables are turned, and the Justice Department is being asked to look at Thurmond, Callaway and company.

Footnote: Both Callaway and Roberts denied any impropriety. Roberts also insisted that Ebel's criticism of his operation was unfair and inaccurate. Thurmond couldn't be reached. But the strong-willed old soldier has said in the past that he has the duty to present any allegations that are brought to his attention. The Inspector General said he had received no pressure from Callaway but had called the shots as he saw them.

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Whose Victory?
Charge Hanoi Troops Went On Massive Murder Spree

WASHINGTON--In a recent letter to President Ford, labor chief George Meany predicted that "while the fighting might stop (in Vietnam), the killing would not." He was right. The blood ran like wild water on a suddenly thawed mountain river.

He wasn't guessing. Nor pushing unsubstantiated "atrocity" propaganda. He had confidential cables sent and information gathered by our erstwhile embassy in Saigon. Here is what Meany reports, based on eyewitness accounts:

Approximately 100,000 people trying to cross a river near the Phu Bon border were set upon by North Vietnamese troops who poured mortar and recoilless rifle fire into the crowd.

According to witnesses, all of the 100,000 were either killed or captured. A nun reports that when the convoy passed near the downstream of Dong Cam Dam, soldiers told her the water behind the dam was choked with bodies.

Near Pleiku City, a priest, Father Cong, was killed on the spot when he walked out in front of a group of his parishioners to talk to Vietcong who barred their way.

In Ban Me Thuot, several thousand people were assembled by North Vietnamese troops and told to sit. A local "PRG" cadre walked through the crowd and removed 300 people known to be GVN employes and police. The cadre delivered a harangue accusing the 300 of being American lackeys and spies, and enemies of the people. The 300 were then all shot and killed. The families of the 300 were led out of town. A monk who witnessed the scene reports that he saw mortar explosions in the midst of the people. As the families ran they were shot at.

An officer on the SS Tran-Colorado reports, "Women, children, even a nun, were found to have had their hands and feet blown off or mutilated by the advancing North Vietnamese forces."

On the outskirts of Danang, local VC forces have carried out brutal executions. GVN policemen were beheaded, and groups of soldiers were tied together and killed with grenades.

On March 14, a mixed RV-NAF-Civilian group of five or six thousand people trying to get to the coast were set upon by enemy soldiers, who began driving 15 trucks at high speed through the crowd, the drivers apparently trying to kill as many people as they could. Fifty to sixty were thus killed.

The Truong hamlet, near Ban Me Thuot, peopled entirely by 1954 refugees from the North, was attacked by six or seven tanks. After furiously resisting, the hamlet ran out of ammunition and all but a handful of the surviving population took refuge in the local church. Additional enemy tanks rolled in and shelled the church to rubble, killing all inside.

In Quang Tin, they rounded up all of the police force. Some were shot out of hand. With others, they drove nails through their heels, wired them together and led them off to the jungle. That was the last seen of them. Some of the military were also treated in the same way.

The above statements are from George Meany's communications.

After these reports, which I have put down verbatim, the labor chief discloses what the Vietcong did to Vietnam labor leaders. The latter were brutally treated. Many have been arrested. They have disappeared. Some were regional leaders, some headed the transportation union and the equivalent of the Teamsters.

I can verify this. My own sources in the intelligence community say the documented reports coming out of occupied Saigon are as horrendous as those of the outright massacre of 60,000 anti-Communists of all professions and trades on orders from Ho Chi Minh in the early '50s.

Why don't we hear from those who lamented so loudly and talked so lewdly when the U.S. airmen bombed Communist war factories and military supply highways?

Does the blood and pain and heartbreak of anti-Communists count for nothing? They were dead or dying the other Sunday when so many gay thousands went to New York Central Park Sheep Meadow to celebrate the people's victory. What people? Whose victory?

CIRCUIT COURT

CHARLESTON — Probation of Michael Williams, a former teacher at Charleston Junior High School, was revoked Wednesday by Judge Marshall Craig.

Williams was ordered to begin serving a five-year sentence in custody of the State Department of Corrections on a statutory rape conviction stemming from relations Williams had with a former student. He had been placed on five-year probation by Judge Craig on Nov. 20, 1974 and violated that probation by being convicted of disturbing the peace while working in Jonesboro, Ark., during March.

Freddie Eugene Tubbs, John Wayne Tatum and Charles O. Fitzgerald were each given stays on one-year sentences in the county jail for burglary and stealing. The three, charged in connection with the theft of a .30 caliber carbine rifle from the Wallace Reeves home in the Birds Point community on Nov. 1, 1974, were placed on two-year probation on condition they obey the law, pay costs and not associate with each other.

Bradford Keith Sandage of Wyatt received a stay on a two-year jail sentence and was placed on three-year probation for burglary. Sandage was charged with a Jan. 6 break-in at Raffety's Store in Wyatt.

Jerry Terry Cross entered a voluntary plea of guilty to burglry and stealing, and his punishment was taken under advisement. He is to report back to court on July 2 for sentencing.

Richard Neil Emanuel pleaded guilty to charges of carrying a concealed dangerous and deadly weapon and striking an officer in performance of his duty. Punishment was taken under advisement and he is to return to court June 25 for sentencing.

Holiday deaths may reach 500

CHICAGO (AP) — Between 400 and 500 Americans will die in traffic accidents during the Memorial Day holiday, the National Safety Council predicts.

The Council on Thursday also projected that 18,000 to 24,000 motorists will suffer disabling injuries over the 78-hour holiday period beginning at 6 p.m. local time Friday and lasting until midnight Monday.

Ron Kuykendall, NSC traffic safety information specialist, said there were 392 fatalities over last year's Memorial Day weekend. The number was down drastically from 539 in 1973, which was before lowered speed limits went into effect on the nation's highways as a result of the gasoline shortage.

Last year there also were 18,000 disabling injuries, while 25,200 were registered in 1973, he said.

NSC predictions are based on previous statistics and on current traffic trends. "We don't try to overstate it (estimates), we try to hit it on the mark," Kuykendall said.

He also said holiday motorists would drive about 12.8 billion miles during the period.

Youth arrested for purse theft

CHARLESTON — A 12-year-old boy was apprehended late Thursday by police officer Walter Westerhold following a purse-snatching incident at Del Farms Food Store on West Marshall Street.

Westerhold, who turned the boy over to juvenile authorities, said a youth grabbed a billfold from the hand of Mrs. Lee Hill of Charleston as she walked out of the store.

Correction

BENTON — Stephen Matthews, 26, of Sikeston and Theresa C. Laster, 21, of Benton were married April 4 at Sikeston by the Rev. Floyd C. Fears. It was incorrectly stated in Saturday's edition of The Daily standard that Matthews married Darla Gail Newman, 15, of Sikeston.

Bodgett plans memorial event

BLODGETT--The 33rd annual memorial and homecoming observance in Blodgett has been set for Sunday.

The event will begin with attendance of the morning worship service at First Baptist Church. The service will begin at 11 o'clock, and a sermon titled "Follow the Colors" will be delivered by the Rev. A.B. Ledbetter, pastor, who is a retired army master sergeant.

Special music will be provided by Mrs. Nancy Withrow, Mrs. Doris Phillips and Mrs. Caroline Duff.

Following the service a basket dinner will be served in the church dining room.

A memorial service will be held at the Veterans Monument at 2 p.m., with Richard Riley serving as master of ceremonies and a contingent of the Sikeston National Guard unit on hand to fire the "salute." Veterans present will be asked to form a "V" while the names of the deceased Gold Star veterans are read.

Following the playing of "Taps", the Rev. Mr. Ledbetter will deliver the closing remarks and prayer.

The memorial event is sponsored by the Blodgett Area Veterans Club.

SATURDAY MAY 24-10 am to 5 pm
SUNDAY MAY 25-1pm to 5pm

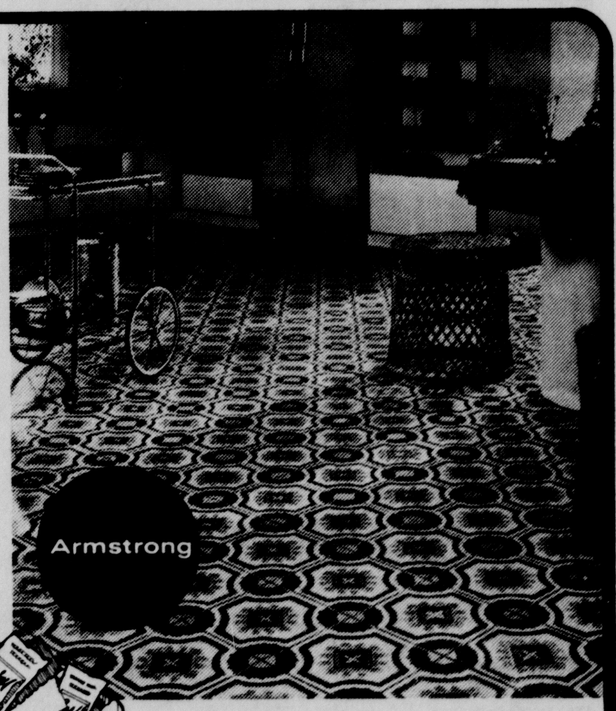

The Sikeston Area Vocational School proudly displays a home consturcted by the students enrolled in Vocational Building Trades. These students, under the direction of Mr. Wayne Land, are to be commended for the fine work done in making this brick veneer home a reality.
The program, taught as a two year course, begins with students entering the junior year of high schoool. In addition to gaining on the job experience through the actual construction of a home, many hours are spent in the classroom studying building details.
Included in the floor space of 1736 square feet is a kitchen, den, dining room, living room, three bedrooms and two baths. To add beauty and comfort, the house has been fully carpeted. In addition, central air and heating has been installed to maintain comfortable year round temperature.
These are but a few of the quality features found in this student built home. Your support at the open house is greatly appreciated.

This home was built by Vocational Trading School Students and will be sold by sealed bids to be opened at the next school Board Meeting. All bids must be submitted to Charles Simpson or HIgh School Superintendent Office, Highway, 61, N. Sikeston, Mo.

CIRCUIT COURT

CHARLESTON — Probation of Michael Williams, a former teacher at Charleston Junior High School, was revoked Wednesday by Judge Marshall Craig.

Williams was ordered to begin serving a five-year sentence in custody of the State Department of Corrections on a statutory rape conviction stemming from relations Williams had with a former student. He had been placed on five-year probation by Judge Craig on Nov. 20, 1974 and violated that probation by being convicted of disturbing the peace while working in Jonesboro, Ark., during March.

Freddie Eugene Tubbs, John Wayne Tatum and Charles O. Fitzgerald were each given stays on one-year sentences in the county jail for burglary and stealing. The three, charged in connection with the theft of a .30-caliber carbine rifle from the Wallace Reeves home in the Birds Point community on Nov. 1, 1974, were placed on two-year probation on condition they obey the law, pay costs and not associate with each other.

Bradford Keith Sandage of Wyatt received a stay on a two-year jail sentence and was placed on three-year probation for burglary. Sandage was charged with a Jan. 6 break-in at Raffety's Store in Wyatt.

Jerry Terry Cross entered a voluntary plea of guilty to burglry and stealing, and his punishment was taken under advisement. He is to report back to court on July 2 for sentencing.

Richard Neil Emanuel pleaded guilty to charges of carrying a concealed dangerous and deadly weapon and striking an officer in performance of his duty. Punishment was taken under advisement and he is to return to court June 25 for sentencing.

Holiday deaths may reach 500

CHICAGO (AP) — Between 400 and 500 Americans will die in traffic accidents during the Memorial Day holiday, the National Safety Council predicts.

The Council on Thursday also projected that 18,000 to 24,000 motorists will suffer disabling injuries over the 78-hour holiday period beginning at 6 p.m. local time Friday and lasting until midnight Monday.

Ron Kuykendall, NSC traffic safety information specialist, said there were 392 fatalities over last year's Memorial Day weekend. The number was down drastically from 539 in 1973, which was before lowered speed limits went into effect on the nation's highways as a result of the gasoline shortage.

Last year there also were 18,000 disabling injuries, while 25,200 were registered in 1973, he said.

NSC predictions are based on previous statistics and on current traffic trends. "We don't try to overstate it (estimates), we try to hit it on the mark," Kuykendall said.

He also said holiday motorists would drive about 12.8 billion miles during the period.

Youth arrested for purse theft

CHARLESTON — A 12-year-old boy was apprehended late Thursday by police officer Walter Westerhold following a purse-snatching incident at Del Farms Food Store on West Marshall Street.

Westerhold, who turned the boy over to juvenile authorities, said a youth grabbed a billfold from the hand of Mrs. Lee Hill of Charleston as she walked out of the store.

Correction

BENTON — Stephen Matthews, 26, of Sikeston and Theresa C. Laster, 21, of Benton were married April 4 at Sikeston by the Rev. Floyd C. Fears. It was incorrectly stated in Saturday's edition of The Daily standard that Matthews married Darla Gail Newman, 15, of Sikeston.

Bodgett plans memorial event

BLODGETT--The 33rd annual memorial and homecoming observance in Blodgett has been set for Sunday.

The event will begin with attendance of the morning worship service at First Baptist Church. The service will begin at 11 o'clock, and a sermon titled "Follow the Colors" will be delivered by the Rev. A.B. Ledbetter, pastor, who is a retired army master sergeant.

Special music will be provided by Mrs. Nancy Withrow, Mrs. Doris Phillips and Mrs. Caroline Duff.

Following the service a basket dinner will be served in the church dining room.

A memorial service will be held at the Veterans Monument at 2 p.m., with Richard Riley serving as master of ceremonies and a contingent of the Sikeston National Guard unit on hand to fire the "salute." Veterans present will be asked to form a "V" while the names of the deceased Gold Star veterans are read.

Following the playing of "Taps", the Rev. Mr. Ledbetter will deliver the closing remarks and prayer.

The memorial event is sponsored by the Blodgett Area Veterans Club.

The Sikeston Area Vocational School proudly displays a home consturcted by the students enrolled in Vocational Building Trades. These students, under the direction of Mr. Wayne Land, are to be commended for the fine work done in making this brick veneer home a reality.
The program, taught as a two year course, begins with students entering the junior year of high schoool. In addition to gaining on the job experience through the actual construction of a home, many hours are spent in the classroom studying building details.
Included in the floor space of 1736 square feet is a kitchen, den, dining room, living room, three bedrooms and two baths. To add beauty and comfort, the house has been fully carpeted. In addition, central air and heating has been installed to maintain comfortable year round temperature.
These are but a few of the quality features found in this student built home. Your support at the open house is greatly appreciated.

This home was built by Vocational Trading School Students and will be sold by sealed bids to be opened at the next school Board Meeting. All bids must be submitted to Charles Simpson or High School Superintendent Office, Highway, 61, N. Sikeston, Mo.

Ford may act on energy tariff before Wednesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, tired of waiting for Congress to act on energy legislation, probably will take administrative action on energy by next week.

"I think his inclination now is that, since he introduced his energy legislation on Jan. 21 and it is now May 22 and Congress has taken no action, he is determined that we need to begin a program to end our reliance on foreign sources of oil," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Thursday.

The main options before the President are to add a second $1-per-barrel tariff on imported oil, to initiate a gradual end to price controls on domestic crude oil, or both.

Ford imposed a $1-a-barrel tariff Feb. 1, but delayed until June 1 two more $1-a-barrel increases in the oil tariff, saying he hoped Congress would develop an energy program.

Democratic leaders in Congress delayed action this week on a congressional energy-conservation program until after a 10-day Memorial Day recess ending June 2.

Nessen told newsmen Thursday there is "a good possibility" Ford will act on energy before he leaves for Europe on Wednesday.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb said, "I would say the tariff is one of the tools the President is considering. He hasn't made a decision."

Zarb said a second $1-a-barrel tariff on imported oil would add 1 to 1½ cents to the cost of each gallon of gasoline.

Zarb met on Capitol Hill Thursday with New England senators to try to secure their support for oil price decontrol.

The price of about two-thirds of all U.S.-produced oil is limited to $5.25 per barrel. The remainder can be sold at the world market price, which currently is about $10.50 to $11 per barrel.

The proposal being considered by the President calls for gradual decontrol of domestic oil prices over a two-year period, which administration officials say would lessen the immediate impact on consumers.

The officials believe that decontrol would spur domestic oil operators to undertake efforts to increase production from oilfields now under price controls.

Gas shortage expected

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Curtailment of natural gas may cause "serious economic problems" to Missouri industry and small communities which will have to convert their utility plants, the director of the Missouri Energy Agency says.

The agency is taking a survey of natural gas distributors and "interruptible" customers to find what the effects will be of the growing shortage, Wes Fisher, MEA head, said Thursday at a Missouri Energy Council monthly meeting here.

"Within a couple of decades, most of the natural gas may be gone," Fisher said.

The agency plans to hire engineers to consult small utilities and towns on how to convert to other fuels, he added.

About a third of the state's energy comes from natural gas.

Some interruptible customers have already been forced to convert and many more will lose their gas supply in the next few years, he said. Interruptible users are normally industrial plants or commercial firms which buy gas for lower rates.

So far, the curtailments have not cause any major dislocations, he said.

The survey will show what areas of the state have intensive use of natural gas and indicate where future coal gasification plants should be located, Fisher said.

A council member, Jerald Driefky, research chief at Union Electric Co. in St. Louis, said the utility plans to be operating a small coal gasification plant by 1981. But Driefky warned that the process was costly.

"If we further increase the cost of energy, the nation will be poorer," he said.

Marvin Nodiff, a Natural Resources Department official, said within a few years Missouri's coal reserves may be economically feasible to mine for energy purposes.

More information is needed on the size of the deposits and their sulfur content, he said.

Judges refuse to sign order on tax increase

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) — Two judges of the Dunklin County Court say they will refuse to sign an order increasing the county tax assessment rate by 11 per cent until county tax assessors put improvements on farm properties on the books.

Judge Ralph Stropp said there had been a move toward residential construction in rural areas of the county because homes and other buildings built on farmland were excluded from the assessments. He called the practice unfair.

He was joined by Judge John Scott, who noted that farms of equal size often paid equal taxes regardless of the buildings on the land.

Girl is winner of MFA award

DEXTER — Miss Catherine Jane Garland is the winner of the MFA Foundation Scholarship awarded to a member of this year's graduating class at Dexter High School. The announcement was made at the awards ceremony Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Slaughter of Dexter are her guardians. Miss Barland plans to attend The School of the Ozarks at Point Lookout and expects to study business.

The $250 scholarship was donated by the MFA Foundation and MFA exchanges at Bernie and Dexter. It is one of 172 college scholarships being presented to Missouri high school graduates this year by the Missouri Farmers Association and affiliated agencies.

BERNIE — Joseph Gerard Stuever is the winner of the MFA college scholarship awarded to a member of this year's graduating class at Bernie High School. The announcement was made at the awards ceremony ceremony Tuesday.

He is the son of Mrs. Grace Bernice Stuever of Dexter. Stuever plans to attend Southeast Missouri State University and expects to study agribusiness.

While attending high school, Stuever was a representative on the Sophomore Pilgrimage, a four-year member of the band and student council, which he served as president, an active member of Future Farmers of America chairman of the prom committee and member of the senior play cast and basketball and baseball teams.

In addition to his school activities, Stuever is a member of his church youth group and the Young Farmers Organization.

Women on the go

ROSEMARY ALSUP, Route Three, has two hangups -- kids and animals. In fact, she cannot decide whether to be a veternarian or to start her own nursery school.

Miss Alsup is 18 and will graduate today. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Castor Alsup. While at school, she was involved neck deep with the Red Peppers, a pep organization.

Last year she was elected by 225 girls as Cayenne or president. Cayenne means "a very hot pepper" and she is -- hot with energy. Because the peppers were broke, she organized a spring fashion show, a first. "It was a blast now that I think back on it. But it was the most nerve-wracking thing to do. Girls would call in at the last minute saying they couldn't come."

In addition, she worked two hours daily as a cadette teacher at public kindergarten. Here she observed teachers and their methods and helped four classes of children play games. "I love to teach kids. It makes you feel good inside."

Because she is fun-loving, she plans to work this summer as a clown to entertain children at birthday parties. As part of a planned birthday party package, she will bring a pet Shetland pony along for rides.

Miss Alsup also was recording secretary for student council and last year invited six girls to her home when about 1,000 members of Missouri Association of Student Councils invaded Sikeston for a mini-convention. As chairwoman of the hospitality committee, she made dozens of phone calls to find other hosts.

Miss Alsup is filled with nervous energy. "I hate to sit around. If somebody asks me to do something, I'll do it. And if I think we're both accomplishing something, I feel that much better." When not busy at school, she rides a quarter horse she trained herself.

She also has a nervous mouth and was a third place winner of Catfish, a title given to her by classmates which means, "a big mouth."

From attending all football and basketball games as Red Pepper president, she learned wrestling can be an exciting sport and especially admires the individual effort put out by wrestlers.

As a leader, Miss Alsup quickly found out "you can't please everybody and can lose a lot of friends. I try to do what is best for the organization and the majority."

As for the future, she has that wrapped up. After attending Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau for one year, she plans to transfer to the University of Missouri-Columbia to become a veternarian.

On the side, she will have a nursery school built like a little red schoolhouse where children will be taught animal care and to be out-going.

She would like to be a Girl Scout leader and squeeze in a trip to Africa to view, of course, the animals.

Marriage is also in the deck of cards and so are twins -- boys two boys or a boy and a girl but definitely not two girls. She prefers to live on a farm as she does now just in case she might want to walk outside in pajamas. Sikeston will continue to be her home because she feels a part of it.

Of her career in extracurricular activities, "I've learned so much more than through my studies such as responsibility and how to work with people. This year has been up and down but the downs have been funny."

Facts on manmade fibers

By JEWEL D. GRADY
Area Textiles & Clothing Specialist

The desire of the American consumer for new, different, and better textile products has brought about many new fibers.

Spandex and Olefin are two man-made fibers that have had wide spread consumer acceptance in the 1960's. Stretch and holding power are words used to describe the unique Spandex textile fiber.

Because of Spandex's high degree of stretch and recovery, abrasion resistances, and ability to resist body oils. It's primary use is in foundation garments. Swimwear, ski-pants, and other sportswear garments are also made from Spandex fibers.

Consumers will want to consider some of the care features of Spandex. In laundering it may be machine washed and dried at a low temperature setting. The low moisture absorbency caused it to dry quickly. Chlorine bleache degrades Spandex and may cause it to turn yellow. Low concentration as that of the swimming pool will not effect the fiber. Spandex should not be ironed.

Olefin Fibers could probably best be recognized for their use as indoor-outdoor carpet. The fiber has good resiliency and should give good service in floor covering. One of the current problems related to Olefin is its lack of dye acceptance. The dyes have a tendency to crock (rub off with wear). Thermoplastic fibers such as nylon, polyester, and Olefin have caused problems by pilling (developing fuzz balls on fabric).

Olefin fibers have a very low melting point and will melt on contact with a burning cigarette. Because of the low moisture absorbency it tends to be easy to clean.

The many uses of textiles products is endless. Textiles are everywhere -- they can be as simple as a pair of socks or as complexed as the walk on the moon. Without textiles, our nation's moon landing would never have been possible.

You as an American consume approximately 54.5 pounds of fibers each year. Can you name the many ways you use textile fibers?

Ann Landers

Man would fight for his girdle

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in the letter from Barney's friend who said he had been wearing pantyhose and a girdle ever since his wife found them in the glove compartment of his car.

I'm a normal, healthy male. I don't wear pantyhose but I wear a panty girdle. I intend to keep on wearing one. My doctor recommended it for a back problem and it has done me a world of good.

The good news is that men can now buy panty girdles without going into the ladies lingerie department. They are offered through at least one leading mail order catalogue. I hope in the not too distant future all men's stores will stock panty girdles and display them with the conventional types of men's underwear. It's high time men enjoyed the right to purchase ANY kind of undergarments, for any reason -- without being labeled gay.

I'm straight as a string and I'll fight anybody who tries to take away my panty girdle. -- Firm, Solid and Pain-Free

Dear Free: That letter from Barney's friend was an eye-opener. I had no idea so many truck drivers, construction workers and business executives wore girdles. All who wrote -- and there were dozens -- assured me that there was no lace on THEIR girdles and their back problems had improved considerably. One man confided, "When my wife was pregnant she wore my shorts and I wore her girdle. We were both very comfortable."

Unisex is here to stay.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you used the word "chutzpah" in your column. Many readers outside the Jewish community may not know the meaning of the word. It has been translated as nerve, gall or brass, but it loses a great deal in the translation. It is better explained this way:

A young man kills both his mother and father. He then throws himself on the mercy of the Court because he is an orphan. THAT'S chutzpah!

Have a good day! -- Irish

Dear Irish: My day will be better because you wrote. Thanks for clarifying one of the most expressive words in the Yiddish language. Another one is "schlep." Anyone out there want to tackle it?

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is being written from the hospital. Things got too heavy and I tried to commit suicide. I shot myself in the chest. I'm out of danger now but I need to know what to do about my girl after I get out of here.

Mabel and I have been living together for almost a year. I always gave her everything she wanted. Last September I found out she was sleeping with my brother. I overlooked it and we went on from there.

In October Mabel had a hysterectomy. I visited her in the hospital every day and bought her a house full of new furniture as a "welcome home" present. I even took off three weeks from my job and stayed home to take care of her.

Mabel started back to work in December. All this time she has refused to have relations with me. I thought it was because of the operation. Now she says she wants to move out because she is in love with a so-called friend of mine. (She started sleeping with him after my brother.) I still love Mabel but she says she wants to leave. What should I do? -- Langly

Dear Lang: Buy her a bus ticket and make her some sandwiches.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Household hints

Many thousands of retail food chain stores now use unit pricing. Most of them use a shelf tag system — a label on the shelf edge below the item. It gives the name of the item, ... the size, ... the total price ... and the unit price. (There may be other numbers but these are probably store inventory numbers.)

So, if there are several items in different size packages, or whatever, and with different total prices, you can readily find the best buy dollarwise.

Unit pricing is just that — the price per unit (cost per ounce, or per pound, or per hundred or per square foot).

Rubella is striking older children in state

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rubella in Missouri is beginning to strike high school and college students instead of children, a state epidemiologist said Thursday.

Of 350 cases reported this year — triple the number last year — most have been concentrated among high school and college students, said Dr. H. Denny Donnell.

The cases this year have been widespread and included St. Louis, Springfield and Kansas City.

Donnell said the increased cases among older students this year apparently results from the fact that rubella immunizations which only became available in 1970 are administered solely to children under 12 years old.

The students now getting the disease were too old to be immunized when the vaccine became available.

Donnell said the vaccine is not administered to older persons because of risks to girls who might be pregnant or become pregnant two months after immunization.

Rubella, also known as German measles, can deform or kill an unborn child.

Made bed won't save the world

By ERMA BOMBECK

My mother has always led me to believe that sleeping on an unmade bed is a health hazard.

Sloppy corners could lead to brain damage. . .lumpy centers to bed-wetting and socks stuck to the blanket. . .well, I just hated to think about it.

When I became engaged she had a conversation with my future mother-in-law which alleviated her worst fears. My future husband was unemployed, immature and slept with a stuffed koala bear. . .but he made his own bed.

Now, out of two consenting adults who made their own beds, it seemed a scientific certainty that their offsprings would inherit the dominant bedmaking chromosomes. Right? Wrong.

We have three children who throw the covers up over their beds only when they want to hide a wet towel.

Someone once said (either Paul Harvey or the Pope) that a mother who makes a child's bed after the age of 7 should leave motherhood and go into another line of work. I've tried to justify unmade beds in our house for the last 15 years.

When guests came, I would run in one of the kids' rooms, throw open the window and say, "We're airing linens today."

Other times I would point to a mound of tousled blankets and sheets and explain, "He just stepped out for a moment. He's coming back."

As the room got progressively worse through the years I could sometimes get away with, 'He's there somewhere. You just can't see him."

A couple of days ago I decided to give it one last shot. I said to my son, "Do you suppose you could make your bed this Friday?"

He looked up, "Why? Are you selling the house?"

"No, I'm..."

"You're missing some towels, right? I don't have them."

"No, I'm having a party."

"In my bedroom?"

"No, but I thought I'd use your bed for the coats."

"Mom, you have a thing about making beds. All your life you've made yourself miserable over a few sloppy sheets and bedspread in the corner. A made bed is not going to get this country going again. It's not going to conquer disease or purify our water and air. It can't even get you to heaven, so what's in it for you?"

"It'll save me from sealing up this room Friday night. Get on the other side and start tucking!"

Women on the go

ROSEMARY ALSUP, Route Three, has two hangups -- kids and animals. In fact, she cannot decide whether to be a veternarian or to start her own nursery school.

Miss Alsup is 18 and will graduate today. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Castor Alsup. While at school, she was involved neck deep with the Red Peppers, a pep organization.

Last year she was elected by 225 girls as Cayenne or president. Cayenne means "a very hot pepper" and she is -- hot with energy. Because the peppers were broke, she organized a spring fashion show, a first. "It was a blast now that I think back on it. But it was the most nerve-wracking thing to do. Girls would call in at the last minute saying they couldn't come."

In addition, she worked two hours daily as a cadette teacher at public kindergarten. Here she observed teachers and their methods and helped four classes of children play games. "I love to teach kids. It makes you feel good inside."

Because she is fun-loving, she plans to work this summer as a clown to entertain children at birthday parties. As part of a planned birthday party package, she will bring a pet Shetland pony along for rides.

Miss Alsup also was recording secretary for student council and last year invited six girls to her home when about 1,000 members of Missouri Association of Student Councils invaded Sikeston for a mini-convention. As chairwoman of the hospitality committee, she made dozens of phone calls to find other hosts.

Miss Alsup is filled with nervous energy. "I hate to sit around. If somebody asks me to do something, I'll do it. And if I think we're both accomplishing something, I feel that much better." When not busy at school, she rides a quarter horse she trained herself.

She also has a nervous mouth and was a third place winner of Catfish, a title given to her by classmates which means, "a big mouth."

From attending all football and basketball games as Red Pepper president, she learned wrestling can be an exciting sport and especially admires the individual effort put out by wrestlers.

As a leader, Miss Alsup quickly found out "you can't please everybody and can lose a lot of friends. I try to do what is best for the organization and the majority."

As for the future, she has that wrapped up. After attending Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau for one year, she plans to transfer to the University of Missouri-Columbia to become a veternarian.

On the side, she will have a nursery school built like a little red schoolhouse where children will be taught animal care and to be out-going.

She would like to be a Girl Scout leader and squeeze in a trip to Africa to view, of course, the animals.

Marriage is also in the deck of cards and so are twins -- boys two boys or a boy and a girl but definitely not two girls. She prefers to live on a farm as she does now just in case she might want to walk outside in pajamas. Sikeston will continue to be her home because she feels a part of it.

Of her career in extracurricular activities, "I've learned so much more than through my studies such as responsibility and how to work with people. This year has been up and down but the downs have been funny."

Food stamp allotments to be increased July 1

CHICAGO—A Missouri family of four will have its allotment for food stamps increased from the current level of $154 to $162 a month. At the same time, the maximum eligibility level for that same family will rise from $513 to $540 per month, an increase of approximately five per cent, according to allotment adjustments announced by Dennis M. Doyle, regional administrator of the Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The increases will be effective July 1.

In announcing the increases, effective for the continental United States, Doyle said, "The Food Stamp Act, as amended by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, directs that coupon allotments be adjusted semiannually to reflect changes in food prices as published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Maximum income eligibility standards are based on allotments and are therefore adjusted at the same time."

Allotment adjustments are based on the cost of USDA's economy food plan as it is computed from Bureau of Labor Statistics food prices. Adjustments are made each July based on the cost of the economy food plan in the preceding February, and in January based on the cost of that plan in the preceding August.

Doyle stated that "the cost of the economy food plan for Februry 1975 was $162 for a family of four with school children."

"Accordingly," Doyle said, "USDA will raise the value of the coupon allotment of a four-person household from $154 to $162 and make appropriate adjustments for other household sizes. In line with the Congressional intent expressed in House Report 94-2, purchase requirements will not be changed, except for households in the top monthly net income brackets."

Maximum income eligibility standards starting July 1 are:

One-person household.....$215
Two-person household.....300
Three-person household....427
Four-person household....540
Five-person household.....$640
Six-person household.....740
Seven-person household.....833
Eight-person household....926

For each additional household member over eight, add $73 to the eight-person eligiblity level.

The accompanying tables, giving coupon allotments and purchase requirements for all household sizes in the 48 contiguous states and the District of Columbia, were published in the Federal Register of May 7. Separate tables for Alaska, Hawaii and the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Guam were announced later.

Silver-hair project slated

JEFFERSON CITY—The Missouri Jaycees will sponsor a Silver Hair Legislature again this year. According to Phil Geissal, director of the project, the objective of the Missouri Jaycees Silver Hair Legislature program is to bring together a non-partisan, representative cross-section of Missouri's senior citizens to discuss their legislative concerns and present workable solutions.

The 1975 Silver Hair Legislature will be conducted in October in the State Capital. The program is being expanded to include both House and Senate sessions over a two-day period, similar to the Jaycee Mock Legislature. Prior to October, delegates will attend two local meetings to develop legislative concerns and strategy.

The Bootheel Regional Council, as part of the Southeast Missouri Area Agency on Aging, will elect delegates to attend the session meetings and to serve on the legislature.

For additional information, please contact: J.A. Taylor, of Caruthersville, chairman of the Bootheel Regional Council on Aging, at telephone number 333-1668 or Vearl Caid of Cape Girardeau, executive director of the Southeast Missouri Area Agency on Aging, telephone number 335-3331.

Indy track proclaimed best-equipped

NEW YORK (AP) — Some persons may consider the Indianapolis Motor Speedway an arena where safety precautions are nil, to put it mildly. But retired auto racing champion Jackie Stewart isn't among them.

"I've always considered Indy to be the best-equipped facility in the world for an emergency situation or accident," says Stewart, an outspoken advocate of racing safety during his later years in the sport.

"Because of the personnel, the fire trucks, the ambulances, there are so many emergency equipment units available that no matter where an accident occurs on the track it's immediately serviced."

The 35-year-old Scot, who drove in the Indianapolis 500 in 1966 and 1967, will be at Indy on Sunday as one of the ABC-TV crew covering the race. ABC will air it on a delayed basis Sunday night.

Stewart says officials at Indy have made the course a safer one over the years, particularly by putting up so-called "debris fences" to protect spectators and heightening a wall in front of the track's pit area.

Asked what other changes he'd like made at Indy, he said one he sees as obvious is the installation of a "strong and robust debris fence protecting the pit lane on the front straightaway."

Such fences consist of strong metal uprights which hold up heavy-duty chain link fences and are backed by taut metal ropes.

He said one should be put up behind the wall separating the pit area and the track to protect drivers, mechanics and others should a collision send a car flying towards the pit area.

"Now, that is an important addition that is necessary because I consider that there is still the very strong risk that a car could get into the pit lane" after a crash, he said.

Stewart, who has helped ABC cover the Indy race since 1971, won the world driving championship three times before quitting racing.

"I had been motor racing as an amateur and as a professional for 13 years and I enjoyed my career enormously," he said of his decision in October 1973 to leave the sport for good.

"But I felt a strong responsibility to my family, to my wife and children in exposing them to the sort of risks that motor racing provides. And I really felt that for them I had to retire."

What's the law?

The case of the singed tenant

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Arthur got all steamed up one week when his radiators didn't. In fact, living in his pad that week was like living inside an igloo. Despite an ordinance that required landlords to maintain certain minimum temperatures, it had been so cold in his apartment that even the icicles had icicles.

Consequently, in desperation, he bought himself an electric blanket. And, while he slept as cozy as a piece of toast that night, by morning he was also burned like a piece of toast.

It seemed that the blankity-blank blanket developed a short circuit and, by the time he awoke, he was badly singed.

Seeking redress for his wounds, Arthur sued his landlord for damages.

"It was all his fault," complained Arthur in court. "Had he supplied the required amount of heat that the law required, I never would have bought that treacherous blanket and I never would have gotten burned."

"That's absurd," responded his landlord. "I can't be held accountable for a defective blanket. Obviously, had Arthur been electrocuted instead of just burned, I couldn't be charged with murder."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Arthur's landlord pay for his being singed?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the landlord's violation of the ordinance had no bearing on the lawsuit since the purpose of the ordinance was to protect tenants against the cold and not against defective electric blankets.

Dr. Lamb

Guard against poisonous snakes

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB -- I like to fish and hunt, but I'm concerned about poisonous snakes. We have rattlesnakes and copperheads and in the adjoining state, Missouri, water moccasins. Antivenin is available only by a doctor's prescription. My family doctor flatly refused to write one saying that the antidote is as bad or worse than the venom, even though an allergy test would show one not to be allergic to the blood of a horse or serum.

Yet, many people who have suffered a venomous snake bite credit the antivenin for saving their life or preventing the amputation of a limb.

In spite of precautions, (walking around, not over rocks and logs; not reaching for downed game behind bushes; wearing high top boots which aren't comfortable during summer months), snake bites happen in this part of the country. True, the fatality rate is not staggering, but the figure of people who lose a limb or are partially disabled is not widely known, to say nothing of the suffering.

Do you agree with my family doctor who maintains that the antivenin kills as many people as does the snake venom? That doctors only pump this medicine into a victim in order to avoid a malpractice lawsuit since it has become an accepted procedure of treatment?

Some oil companies require walking pipeline inspectors to always carry their snake bite kit containing antivenin. Should I pursue toward the acquirement of such a kit?

DEAR READER — You have described the most important precautions. High top boots with double heavy socks will protect against many snake bites. Don't reach for the minnow bucket in the dark. Snakes are sometimes drawn to minnows.

Your doctor is right in not giving you antivenin to use on your own. It is very useful medicine in professional hands but not so good when used by people who are not trained in its use.

In the United States that are only about six deaths a year from rattlesnake bites, whereas there are 24 from bee and wasp stings.

The most important step to take is prevention. If you do get bitten by a snake avoid exertion but get to the nearest medical treatment facility as soon as possible. Don't waste time trying to capture the snake to bring it along.

It helps to apply a light tourniquet above and below the bite area. A simple rubber band will be useful, but don't make it too tight. And, if available, you can put a plastic bag of crushed ice on the skin over the bite area. These measures will slow down absorption.

Incidentally, the antivenin does not prevent the tissue damage that leads to crippling, but helps to prevent the shocklike symptoms that develop.

Incision and suction should not be used except by persons trained in the proper technique. Many amateurs do more harm than good with these measures. Individuals in isolated areas without available medical help should be trained in the use of a kit. This does not apply to most hunters and fishermen.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

It is with pleasure that we receive the Sikeston Standard each day, to keep in touch with friends from home.

However it is with sadness when we read where a dear friend has passed on. Such was today; my beloved friend "Buddie" Carmody.

In years passed Buddie was areal friend to many of us.

His kindness and understanding and never unkind word leaves a dear memory with us.

Thru the years its been a pleasure to visit the Carmody family, and am sure Buddie wasn't feeling his best at Christmas when I last saw him. But it was not of himself he talked regardless of the pain. It was his concern of others.

There are many who remember when this family had a business there. No one was ever refused. Regardless what the matter might be. They did many good deeds and expected nothing in return. My deepest sympathy to this family in the loss of our beloved friend.

Sincerely
Mrs. Martha (Frail) Roderick

On June 5, American Airlines had its 35,500 employees telephone 5 friends and "sell" them on traveling via American. The airline's president, George Warde, said there was no way to measure how much business will come from it, "but if the 177,500 persons contacted were to spend $100 with American in the next 12 months, the gross would almost total $18 million!"

Food stamp allotments to be increased July 1

CHICAGO—A Missouri family of four will have its allotment for food stamps increased from the current level of $154 to $162 a month. At the same time, the maximum eligibility level for that same family will rise from $513 to $540 per month, an increase of approximately five per cent, according to allotment adjustments announced by Dennis M. Doyle, regional administrator of the Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The increases will be effective July 1.

In announcing the increases, effective for the continental United States, Doyle said, "The Food Stamp Act, as amended by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, directs that coupon allotments be adjusted semiannually to reflect changes in food prices as published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Maximum income eligibility standards are based on allotments and are therefore adjusted at the same time."

Allotment adjustments are based on the cost of USDA's economy food plan as it is computed from Bureau of Labor Statistics food prices. Adjustments are made each July based on the cost of the economy food plan in the preceding February, and in January based on the cost of that plan in the preceding August.

Doyle stated that "the cost of the economy food plan for Februry 1975 was $162 for a family of four with school children."

"Accordingly," Doyle said, "USDA will raise the value of the coupon allotment of a four-person household from $154 to $162 and make appropriate adjustments for other household sizes. In line with the Congressional intent expressed in House Report 94-2, purchase requirements will not be changed, except for households in the top monthly net income brackets."

Maximum income eligibility standards starting July 1 are:

One-person household.....$215
Two-person household.....300
Three-person household....427
Four-person household....540
Five-person household.....$640
Six-person household.....740
Seven-person household.....833
Eight-person household....926

For each additional household member over eight, add $73 to the eight-person eligiblity level.

The accompanying tables, giving coupon allotments and purchase requirements for all household sizes in the 48 contiguous states and the District of Columbia, were published in the Federal Register of May 7. Separate tables for Alaska, Hawaii and the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Guam were announced later.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

It is with pleasure that we receive the Sikeston Standard each day, to keep in touch with friends from home.

However it is with sadness when we read where a dear friend has passed on. Such was today; my beloved friend "Buddie" Carmody.

In years passed Buddie was a real friend to many of us.

His kindness and understanding and never unkind word leaves a dear memory with us.

Thru the years its been a pleasure to visit the Carmody family, and am sure Buddie wasn't feeling his best at Christmas when I last saw him. But it was not of himself he talked regardless of the pain. It was his concern of others.

There are many who remember when this family had a business there. No one was ever refused. Regardless what the matter might be. They did many good deeds and expected nothing in return. My deepest sympathy to this family in the loss of our beloved friend.

Sincerely
Mrs. Martha (Frail) Roderick

On June 5, American Airlines had its 35,500 employees telephone 5 friends and "sell" them on traveling via American. The airline's president, George Warde, said there was no way to measure how much business will come from it, "but if the 177,500 persons contacted were to spend $100 with American in the next 12 months, the gross would almost total $18 million!"

Deaths

Luther P. Payne

Luther Phillip Payne, 65, of 115 N. Ingram St. died at 8:10 a.m. today in Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

He was born Feb. 12, 1910 in Warm Springs, Ark.

The body is at Bill O'Guinn Funeral Home, where arrangements are incomplete.

Victor Gulledge

LUTESVILLE — Victor Gulledge, 66, a retired railroad worker, formerly of Malden, died Wednesday at Veterans Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Born April 22, 1909 at Malden, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gulledge.

In 1970, he married Nettie E. Hodge, who survives. Other survivors include five stepsons, Harold Dudley of Palo Alto, Calif., and Marvin, Kenneth, Mc and Tom Dudley of St. Louis; two brothers, Arvel Gulledge of Malden and Lawrence Gulledge of Maryville, Ill.; and three sisters, Maydell Bryant of Malden and Isabelle Donica and Cora J. Dillick of St. Louis.

Services are scheculed at 2 p.m. Saturday in Landess Funeral Home at Malden with the Rev. Cecil Winberry officiating.

Burial will follow in Mole Hill Cemetery near Broseley.

Calvin W. Baker

Active pallbearers for services at 2 p.m. Saturday in Bill O'Guinn Funeral Home for Calvin Wayne Baker, 47, who died Thursday, will be Jim Reese, Bennie Thompson, Fred Koch, Jim Hunot, Howard Gipson, Albert Merrell, Jack Mercer and Don Nelson.

Honorary Pallbearers will be Roscoe Vaughan, Herb Crabb, Bill Acord, Clarence Chaney, Harold Phillips and Desmond Becker.

He was an employe of Ziegenhorn-Pratt Construction Co. for 32 years, not 12 years as incorrectly stated in Thursday's death notice.

Garcia infant

MALDEN — Graveside rites for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Garcia, who was stillborn Wednesday at Columbia, will be conducted at 2 p.m. Saturday in North Caanan Cemetery near Gideon, with Bradshaw Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Oran names top students

ORAN — Cathy Schlosser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Schlosser, has been named valedictorian and Mary Alice Eftink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Eftink, has been named salutatorian of the Oran High School 1975 graduating class.

Miss Schlosser, who had perfect attendance all four years of high school, won the valedictorian scholarship to attend Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau.

Miss Eftink received a scholarship from the Oran Parent-Teachers Association and Three Rivers Community College at Poplar Bluff.

Both gave short talks during Thursday's commencement exercises.

Other award winners announced by Principal Ernest Perkins included: Gina Pobst, University of Missouri regent scholarship; Mary Pobst, Southeast Missouri State University scholarship; Lucy Todt Brindley, Southeast Missouri State University Scholarship; Debbie Patterson, Three Rivers Community College Incentive Scholarship; Rhonda Welter, Oran State Bank scholarship; and Patricia Tetley, Lions Club Scholarship.

The Rev. J. Dallas Wallace, pastor of Hope Baptist Church, delivered the invocation and benediction. Leon Schlitt, president of the school board, presented diplomas to graduating seniors.

Karla Lamprey and Patrick Young tied for eighth grade valedictory honors and Kelly Campbell was named eighth grade salutatorian.

Dorothy Griffin, grade school principal, presented eighth grade diplomas.

Women say movie is pornographic

BENTON — Mrs. Virginia Waters and Mrs. Dorotha Jobe of Sikeston complained to the Scott County Court Thursday of "Voluptuary", a movie recently shown at Delta Drive Inn Theatre on Highway 61 near Sikeston. They objected to the movie as being pornographic.

They explained to the court that they were entertaining several visitors from India, who wished to see a drive-in movie. They said that they were surprised at the movie and decided not to stay.

The three-member panel told the two women that it was out of the County Court's jurisdiction.

Only a brief session was held Thursday, so the three judges could attend a Southeast Missouri Judges Conference at the Mississippi County Courthouse.

Baker home ransacked

BLOOMFIELD — The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department is investigating two burglaries which occurred sometime Thursday.

A movie projector, color television, typewriter and an undetermined amount of liquor was taken from the office of Tom Baker, which is located in his home in the Baker community. The remainder of the house was ransacked.

Entry was gained by breaking a pane in a French door and disconnecting the alarm system.

An air conditioner was stolen from the Kinder Chapel Church located near Bloomfield. The church was also ransacked and curtains were stolen from the windows.

Entry was gained by kicking in a back door.

Juveniles charged with theft

CHARLESTON — Two Charleston juveniles, ages 13 and 16, have been charged with abreak-in and theft of two radios and a coffee pot from Charleston Aviation Inc., east of Charleston.

Deputy Sheriff Norris Grissom said the two broke a window to enter the building. The stolen property was recovered Wednesday after the youths were arrested by Grissom and Gordon Gilmore, juvenile officer.

Steinmetz is presented award

Ron Steinmetz, center, psychiatric social work supervisor at Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic, receives a human relations award from Mayor Don Fulton, right, as Dave Brent, chief human relations officer for the Missouri Department of Mental Health, looks on. The award was based on a vote by diagnostic clinic employes.

Three robberies reported to police

A tape player, auto parts and wheel covers were reported stolen in separate thefts, police said today.

A tape player was taken from a car belonging to Walter Kriby, 129 N. Handy St., between 7:15 and 10:25 p.m. Thursday.

The player was valued at between $40 and $50. The car was parked behind the building when the theft occurred.

Louie Goetz, 11 Lynn Drive, told police that someone took auto parts stored in a garage at Modern Floor Covering, 819 E. Malone Ave.

Taken were a compressor valued at $40, 18 radiators worth $180 and three sets of heads worth $160. The theft occurred between May 16 and Thursday.

Two wheel covers valued at $44 were taken from a car belonging to Wayne Tumbleson of Morehouse sometime between 1 and 2:30 a.m. Thursday in the Malone & Hyde, Inc., parking lot.

Man injured seriously in accident

An Annapolis man was seriously injured and three persons suffered lesser injuries in four area traffic accidents Thursday, the highway patrol announced today.

Charles Roland Sutton, 29, received serious injuries in a one-car accident at 1:35 a.m. on Highway 49 in the Iron County community of Vulcan.

The accident occurred when a northbound car driven by Sutton ran off the road and struck a tree.

He was taken to Doctors Hospital at Poplar Bluff.

Paul D. Regna, 19, of St. Louis received moderate injuries in another one-car accident at 9:45 p.m. on Route AA about 10 miles south of Ironton.

The accident occurred when Regna lost control of the eastbound van, which overturned in the middle of the road.

He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital at Ironton.

A Neelyville man suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident at 12:45 p.m. at the intersection of Highways 16 and 142 in Doniphan.

The accident occurred when a southbound pickup truck driven by Jean Sanford Winn, 62, of Grandin made a left turn into the path of an eastbound station wagon driven by William Lewis James, 29, of Neelybille. The James car struck the Winn car, then ran off the road, down a steep embankment and overturned.

James received minor injuries, and was taken to Ripley County Memorial Hospital at Doniphan.

A 9-year-old Portageville girl received minor injuries at 2:30 p.m. at the intersection of Sixth and DeLisle streets in Portageville when she rode her bicycle into the path of a car driven by Taylor Herman Noles Sr., 79, of Portageville.

Virginia Ann Angel was treated and released at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

and there is no reason why it can't be made stronger ... We do have to upgrade and modernize our military capability in the alliance.

"Although I see problems in one or two countries, internally, basically our alliance is strong," the President said.

He said his trip to a NATO summit meeting in Brussels next week is "aimed at solidifying and making more cohesive this relationship," economically, diplomatically and military.

"As long as the United States does not pull out and continues to be a strong partner, the alliance will remain strong," Ford said.

He said he recognizes problems between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus, but he believes they can be solved. He said he was encouraged that there were recent meetings between the prime ministers of Greece and Turkey, and added he hoped to meet with leaders of both sides during the upcoming Brussels conference.

—He feels the majority won by socialists in Portuguese national elections, in which Communists gained only 15 per cent of the vote, has "not had a significant impact on those who control the government."

"I am concerned about the Communist element and its influence in Portugal and therefore Portugal's relationship with NATO," Ford said. "It is a very serious matter and I certainly will bring it up in Brussels."

—He lauds Europeans for doing more to conserve petroleum than the United States.

"The Congress has failed very badly," Ford said. "They have done literally nothing to help meet our energy problem."

Promising a decision within 48 hours on whether to add an extra $1-a-barrel import fee to foreign-produced oil, effective June 1, Ford said such a move might help spur congressional action.

The President disagreed that the United States was moving into a period of neo-isolationism. He said there are indications Congress is more willing to let him have a freer hand in foreign policy.

Buffer force fails to halt fighting in Lebanon area

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas and the private army of Lebanon's right-wing Phalangist party battled for the fourth day today with mortars, machine guns and bazookas after the Lebanese government failed in an attempt to put a buffer force between them.

The casualty toll rose to more than 25 dead and 150 wounded.

Residents in the battle area on the eastern outskirts of Beirut said special police forces that tried to establish a buffer zone between the warring factions Thursday night withdrew when they were caught in a crossfire.

This morning they were reported observing the shooting but not participating.

The Moslem Palestinians and the Christian Phalangists battled for five days last month after a shooting at the dedication of a Christian church guarded by the Phalangist militia. Two hundred persons were killed and more than 500 were wounded.

The fighting this week was touched off by a clash Tuesday between some Palestinians and a police patrol.

The Phalangists charge that the Palestinians endanger Lebanon by their guerrilla operations against Israel from bases in southern Lebanon. The Palestinians charge that the Phalangists are trying to drive them out of the country or impose restrictions on guerrilla activity that would kill the Palestine liberation movement.

The tension and periodic outbreaks of fighting have hurt Lebanon's tourist trade and Beirut's image as the stable financial center of the Arab world.

Schools, banks and business establishments have been closed. Shopkeepers have struck in support of one or the other faction. Postal service and transit trade at the port have been disrupted since March. Some foreign companies have indicated they might have to leave Beirut unless conditions improve.

Elsewhere in the Middle East:

The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram reported that Libya has granted the Soviet Union army, naval and air bases on Libyan territory in exchange for Soviet agreement to sell the Libyans $4 billion worth of tanks, missiles and other of the "latest sophisticated arms in the Soviet arsenal."

Because of the very bad relations between Col. Moammar Khadafy and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, the big Soviet arms sale to Libya was certain to increase Egyptian displeasure with the Soviet Union. An Egyptian political magazine claimed in early May that Khadafy is building a line of fortifications along the Libyan-Egyptian border as a preliminary to invading Egypt and uniting the two countries by force.

Firing was reported across the Israeli-Jordanian border for the first time in several years. The Israeli military command reported that one of its patrols came under small-arms fire from Jordan south of Galilee and returned the fire. One Israeli was reported wounded.

The Israeli foreign ministry expressed "satisfaction and gratitude" for the letter by 76 U.S. senators to President Ford opposing any attempt to reduce American support for Israel. The White House said the President "welcomes all suggestions" and pointed out that the United States is committed to the "survival of a free and independent Israel."

An Arab League representative in Washington said the senators were seeking "a blank check for Israel to continue to procrastinate in complying with U.N. resolutions pertaining to the Middle East conflict."

Homecoming slated Sunday

DOGWOOD — The annual homecoming for friends of the community will be held Sunday at the Dogwood United Methodist Church, according to the Rev. Floyd V. Brower, pastor.

Sunday School will begin at 10 a.m., followed by the morning worship service at 11, which will consist of special music, congregational singing, a memorial service for those who have died during the year and a brief sermon.

A basket dinner will follow the services.

Man sentenced to two years for grand theft

BLOOMFIELD — Darrell Tubbs, 19, of Dexter was sentenced Tuesday to two years in custody of the Missouri Department of Corrections after pleading guilty in Stoddard County Circuit Court to a charge of grand theft.

Tubbs is charged with stealing a car owned by Ralph Buchanan of Dexter following his escape from the Stoddard County jail on May 5. Tubbs and two other prisoners escaped custody while the three men were on a work detail at Dexter.

At the time of the jailbreak, Tubbs was being held on forgery and parole violation charges.

In another case heard before Judge Flake McHaney, bail bond was raised to $7,500 on a forgery charge against Danny Deberry.

Miner Baptist Church plans Sunday picnic

Miner Baptist Church's annual picnic, will be held Sunday at the Charleston Baptist Association camp grounds, located on Highway 77 four miles east of Benton.

The families of the church will prepare a basket dinner to be served together at 1 p.m.

After lunch, games will be played. Each person is to bring his own sports equipment, such as baseball gloves, etc.

The Sunday evening service at the church will be dismissed, according to the Rev. Grady Etheridge, pastor, who says the public may attend the picnic.

it determines your bill...

the electric meter

you should know how it works.

Every month your electric bill arrives. The bill is determined by an intricate device that measures the amount of electricity used — your electric meter.

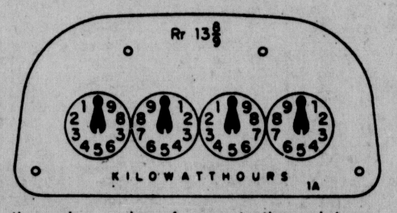

How accurate is it?
Very accurate, here's why:

Residential electric meters contain more than 200 precision parts, and industrial and commercial meters about twice as many. Because of this precision and intricacy, meters are accurate to within one-tenth of one per cent. But just to make sure, the meter is tested carefully before the manufacturer ships it to us. Then we check it again before it is placed on your home. And our electric meter department checks it again at regular intervals.

How your meter works:

Through the glass enclosure of your meter you can see a revolving disk and a series of dials and pointers. Also inside, but out of view, is a small motor run by magnetic forces created by electricity in a set of coils. When current passes through these coils, the measuring disk is forced to turn at a speed in proportion to the exact number of watts of electrical power you are using.

The amount of electricity you use determines the speed at which the disk revolves. The more you use, the faster it moves. Each revolution measure a precise amount of electricity. This watthour measurement is transferred from the disk through a series of gears to the pointers on the dials.

After the meter reader takes the reading, he turns in his records at the electric utility office. But before it is recorded there and your bill prepared, his reading is checked against your previous reading as a check on accuracy.

As you can see, this system of checks and double checks insures you of accuracy on your electric bill. In fact, electricity may be the most accurately measured purchase you make.

Women say movie is pornographic

BENTON — Mrs. Virginia Waters and Mrs. Dorotha Jobe of Sikeston complained to the Scott County Court Thursday of "Voluptuary", a movie recently shown at Delta Drive Inn Theatre on Highway 61 near Sikeston. They objected to the movie as being pornographic.

They explained to the court that they were entertaining several visitors from India, who wished to see a drive-in movie. They said that they were surprised at the movie and decided not to stay.

The three-member panel told the two women that it was out of the County Court's jurisdiction.

Only a brief session was held Thursday, so the three judges could attend a Southeast Missouri Judges Conference at the Mississippi County Courthouse.

Baker home ransacked

BLOOMFIELD — The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department is investigating two burglaries which occurred sometime Thursday.

A movie projector, color television, typewriter and an undetermined amount of liquor was taken from the office of Tom Baker, which is located in his home in the Baker community. The remainder of the house was ransacked.

Entry was gained by breaking a pane in a French door and disconnecting the alarm system.

An air conditioner was stolen from the Kinder Chapel Church located near Bloomfield. The church was also ransacked and curtains were stolen from the windows.

Entry was gained by kicking in a back door.

Juveniles charged with theft

CHARLESTON — Two Charleston juveniles, ages 13 and 16, have been charged with abreak-in and theft of two radios and a coffee pot from Charleston Aviation Inc., east of Charleston.

Deputy Sheriff Norris Grissom said the two broke a window to enter the building. The stolen property was recovered Wednesday after the youths were arrested by Grissom and Gordon Gilmore, juvenile officer.

Three robberies reported to police

A tape player, auto parts and wheel covers were reported stolen in separate thefts, police said today.

A tape player was taken from a car belonging to Walter Kriby, 129 N. Handy St., between 7:15 and 10:25 p.m. Thursday.

The player was valued at between $40 and $50. The car was parked behind the building when the theft occurred.

Louie Goetz, 11 Lynn Drive, told police that someone took auto parts stored in a garage at Modern Floor Covering, 819 E. Malone Ave.

Taken were a compressor valued at $40, 18 radiators worth $180 and three sets of heads worth $160. The theft occurred between May 16 and Thursday.

Two wheel covers valued at $44 were taken from a car belonging to Wayne Tumbleson of Morehouse sometime between 1 and 2:30 a.m. Thursday in the Malone & Hyde, Inc., parking lot.

Man injured seriously in accident

An Annapolis man was seriously injured and three persons suffered lesser injuries in four area traffic accidents Thursday, the highway patrol announced today.

Charles Roland Sutton, 29, received serious injuries in a one-car accident at 1:35 a.m. on Highway 49 in the Iron County community of Vulcan.

The accident occurred when a northbound car driven by Sutton ran off the road and struck a tree.

He was taken to Doctors Hospital at Poplar Bluff.

Paul D. Regna, 19, of St. Louis received moderate injuries in another one-car accident at 9:45 p.m. on Route AA about 10 miles south of Ironton.

The accident occurred when Regna lost control of the eastbound van, which overturned in the middle of the road.

He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital at Ironton.

A Neelyville man suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident at 12:45 p.m. at the intersection of Highways 16 and 142 in Doniphan.

The accident occurred when a southbound pickup truck driven by Jean Sanford Winn, 62, of Grandin made a left turn into the path of an eastbound station wagon driven by William Lewis James, 29, of Neelybille. The James car struck the Winn car, then ran off the road, down a steep embankment and overturned.

James received minor injuries, and was taken to Ripley County Memorial Hospital at Doniphan.

A 9-year-old Portageville girl received minor injuries at 2:30 p.m. at the intersection of Sixth and DeLisle streets in Portageville .when she rode her bicycle into the path of a car driven by Taylor Herman Noles Sr., 79, of Portageville.

Virginia Ann Angel was treated and released at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

ONE OF THE OLDEST FISHING METHODS: TROLLING

Here's How To Be Successful

Trolling can be one of the most productive methods of fishing for certain species of gamefish. Many sportsmen look down on or shy away from this type of angling and prefer bait casting, spinning or still fishing.

This may be a carry over from the days when trolling was real work. In days gone by the trolling fisherman had to row or paddle to troll his bait through the waters. Today's motors, especially the electric trolling motor, have changed the world of trolling.

Virgil Ward

I favor an electric motor for trolling for these reasons: it is quiet, produces no oil slick and has a lower trolling speed than the gasoline engine.

Probably the most effective way to take big lake trout and northern pike is by trolling. Muskie and walleye will also hit a trolling bait, especially when the big fish have retreated to the deep reaches of a lake during the hotter summer months.

I would suggest a stiff rod for trolling. One about five feet long to enable you to set the hook solidly when you get a strike.

I would also go for a heavy - duty reel with a star drag or clutch. These reels, such as the Johnson "Guide Reel" with its double drag make it virtually impossible to break a line. When the fish's pull approaches the line's test strength, the reel automatically shifts into a factory pre - set drag. The second star drag can then be adjusted from firm to soft to suit your preference while playing the fish.

The reel you select should have great line capacity as you may be trolling 350 to 400 feet of line to get your lure down to the desired depth.

I like the limp monofilament line because it has very little stretch. However, you can use lead - core line, copper or stainless steel.

When you want to troll down fairly deep use a long - billed lure. For the northern regions of the country you can successfully use a one - quarter ounce Bass Buster maribou jig. It attracts fish in northern waters better than the long - billed lures.

Change the depth that you troll. Follow an "S" course and occasionally move your rod forward so the lure races ahead a few feet to simulate a minnow trying to escape.

When trolling the waters of the Midwest, I like to go across the entrances to deep covers, over bars, ridges and along steep banks. These have proven to be where the larger fish are lurking, and trolling past them has been successful.

If you haven't tried trolling recently it may prove to be a mid - day break in your casting and produce that trophy!

Dear Virgil:

I just returned from fishing Wisconsin where I caught a good size fish which I thought was a large northern pike. A guide at our camp told me it was a small muskellunge. Is there an easy way to tell them apart?

Merle Stouse
Lake Waukomis, Mo.

Dear Merle:

The muskie does not have the scales on the lower half of the cheek and gill cover that you'll see on the northern. The lower jaw of the northern has five or less small openings or sensory pores. The muskie's lower jaw will have six or more. They're both members of the pike family.

Virgil Ward.

Saints rely on pitching

"Man, you guys've got pitchers at every position," was the envious comment. And, Jeff "Jethro" Jackson went out and proved that was true, hurling a two-hitter and fanning a dozen, while leading the Sikeston Saints to a 7-1 victory over Sikeston Truss Thursday night.

Jackson, who has played shortstop so far this year, wasn't the scheduled starter for the Saints against the "visitors." But, one of the big problems in men's independent baseball is getting players to show. So, when the scheduled starter failed to materialize, Jackson was pressed into service and did very well despite the short notice. In the first two games of the season, Saints hurling has allowed just five hitts in 14 innings, and Jackson might have had a no-hitter, except for a misplayed double leading off the sixth. The next man rapped a sharp single to left for the only clean hit off the hard-throwing Kelly High product and spoiled his bid for the Saints' second straight shutout.

Danny Nelson started for Truss and absorbed the loss. He had a 1-2-3 first, but a two-out double by Dale Forbis in the second drove Jackson home from second, and Forbis was plated by the first of two hits by Bob Blankenship.

The Saints then had their biggest scoring inning in the third, counting three times with the aid of two errors. Once again a two-out hit, this time by firstsacker Jim Saulter, accounted for the scoring. Two runs crossed the plate when Saulter's groun single to center was misplayed. Then, when a wild throw followed on Tom Masterson's grounder, the Saints had a five-run lead and Jackson had all the cushion he needed.

Masterson drove in the final two tallies for the Saints in the fifth with yet another two-out safety.

Legion tryouts Saturday

SCOTT CITY — The Scott County Legion team, composed of players in the 16 to 18 year old age group, will hold its first tryout Saturday afternoon at the Illmo- Scott City high school field. Players residing in Scott County and adjacent counties to the south of Scott City would be eligible, with certain restrictions due to enrollments and proxximity to other Legion programs. The nucleus of the team would be expected to come from Northern Scott County, with the possibility of other players from Sikeston, Charleston and possibly East Prairie. According to Legion rules a player must play with the Legion team nearest his residence. The Saturday afternoon tryouts will begin at 2 P.M. at the Illmo-Scott City High School field.

Doug Steimle, John Wilson and Jim Bollinger will be the field managers for the team. Ollie Amick wil handle the paperwork. The team competed in Legion competition for the first time last year. This followed several successful years in Connie Mack competition. The team will play between 25 and 30 games this year.

Members of the Chaffee High School team will be participating in the State finals this weekend, so none of their players will be available for this tryout. Another tryout is scheduled for Wednesday, May 28, at 6 P.M. at the Illmo ball park.

The Illmo-Scott City Benton area will field another team in the same age bracket in the Northern Division of the SEMO Sr. Babe Ruth competition. This team will play a twelve game schedule and the league champion and selected players will represent the league in district competition.

Pat O'Brien will serve as manager for the Scott City based team, sponsored by the Modern Roofing Co. of Scott City.

Players wishing to play on either team should attend the tryouts.

BOAT RACES

Preparations are under way for the 2nd Annual Governor's Cup Sailing Regatta at Stockton State Park. The regatta, to be held May 31-June 1, will be co-sponsored by the Missouri Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks and Recreation, the Central States Sailing Association, andthe QueenCity Sailing Club of Springfield.

Stockton Lake, Missouri's newest U.S. Army Corps of Engineers impoundment, is a sailor's delight, covering some 24,900 acres. Regatta officials predict 150-200 boats will enter the two-day event.

Three races will be held, beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 31. Following the first two races on Saturday, the Division of Parks and Recreation will host a complimentary fish fry for race participants and their families. The third race will begin Sunday at 9:30 a.m. Lt. Gov. William Phelps will present trophies immediately following the race.

Stockton State Park is located 40 miles northwest of Springfield on Missouri 215. Park facilities include an 83-unit campground with 38 electrical hookups for trailer campers; dumping station, modern restrooms; showers and laundry; fishing; picnicking; playgrounds; and marina.

Additional information may be obtained from the Division of Parks and Recreation, P. O. Box 176, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101, (314) 751-2479.

CAR RACES

The "11th ANNUAL AHRA SPRING NATIONALS" will be held in St. Louis May 30, 31 - June 1 at St. Louis International Raceway.

Drag Racing competitors of every class; and type car will compete. This event will run under the sanction and rules of the American Hot Rod Association. Cars will be competing in more than 300 classes, with winners being crowned in seven Eliminator Divisions. This is one of the few Motor-Sports events where Amateurs and Professionals compete during the same race. Top speed should be near 250 miles-per-hour in the Top Fuel class.

Some of the big name racing stars will be Bill Jenkins, Tom McEwen, Gene Snow, John Wiebe, Don Nicholson, Marvin Graham, Frank Bradley, Tom Hoover, Shirley "Cha-Cha" Muldowney, Bobby Rowe, "Jungle Jim" Liberman and Larry Huff.

St. Louis International Raceway is located at the intersection of 1-70 & Hwy 203, on the Illinios side of the Mississippi River.

ONE OF THE OLDEST FISHING METHODS: TROLLING

Here's How To Be Successful

Trolling can be one of the most productive methods of fishing for certain species of gamefish. Many sportsmen look down on or shy away from this type of angling and prefer bait casting, spinning or still fishing.

This may be a carry over from the days when trolling was real work. In days gone by the trolling fisherman had to row or paddle to troll his bait through the waters. Today's motors, especially the electric trolling motor, have changed the world of trolling.

Virgil Ward

I favor an electric motor for trolling for these reasons: it is quiet, produces no oil slick and has a lower trolling speed than the gasoline engine.

Probably the most effective way to take big lake trout and northern pike is by trolling. Muskie and walleye will also hit a trolling bait, especially when the big fish have retreated to the deep reaches of a lake during the hotter summer months.

I would suggest a stiff rod for trolling. One about five feet long to enable you to set the hook solidly when you get a strike.

I would also go for a heavy - duty reel with a star drag or clutch. These reels, such as the Johnson "Guide Reel" with its double drag make it virtually impossible to break a line. When the fish's pull approaches the line's test strength, the reel automatically shifts into a factory pre - set drag. The second star drag can then be adjusted from firm to soft to suit your preference while playing the fish.

The reel you select should have great line capacity as you may be trolling 350 to 400 feet of line to get your lure down to the desired depth.

I like the limp monofilament line because it has very little stretch. However, you can use lead - core line, copper or stainless steel.

When you want to troll down fairly deep use a long - billed lure. For the northern regions of the country you can successfully use a one - quarter ounce Bass Buster maribou jig. It attracts fish in northern waters better than the long - billed lures.

Change the depth that you troll. Follow an "S" course and occasionally move your rod forward so the lure races ahead a few feet to simulate a minnow trying to escape.

When trolling the waters of the Midwest, I like to go across the entrances to deep covers, over bars, ridges and along steep banks. These have proven to be where the larger fish are lurking, and trolling past them has been successful.

If you haven't tried trolling recently it may prove to be a mid - day break in your casting and produce that trophy!

Dear Virgil:

I just returned from fishing Wisconsin where I caught a good size fish which I thought was a large northern pike. A guide at our camp told me it was a small muskellunge. Is there an easy way to tell them apart?

Merle Stouse
Lake Waukomis, Mo.

Dear Merle:

The muskie does not have the scales on the lower half of the cheek and gill cover that you'll see on the northern. The lower jaw of the northern has five or less small openings or sensory pores. The muskie's lower jaw will have six or more. They're both members of the pike family.

Virgil Ward.

Foyt favorite at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt, to the surprise of just about no one, goes off as a 2-1 favorite Sunday to win his fourth Indianapolis 500. The odds for Foyt and 12 others were set in an informal annual poll of certain mechanics, officials and drivers.

Although perimutuel betting on auto racing is illegal, the poll — amazingly accurate the past two years — is conducted as a friendly survey for information purposes only. The poll correctly named Gordon Johncock in 1973 and Johnny Rutherford last year as the most likely to succeed.

Foyt's odds, up from 5-2 after a blown engine in practice last week, are the closest ever on the poll. The line on the three-time winner says, "He's got it all together."

Behind the 40-year-old Foyt is the oldest man in the race, 47-year-old Lloyd Ruby, who despite his reputation for bad luck here is given a better shot at 3-1 than his McLaren teammate, Rutherford. The ride is Ruby's best ever, the desire is still strong.

The relaxed, ready appearance this month of Dan Gurney and driver Bobby Unser has a lot of people worried. The 1968 winner is due again. He and Dan seem to know something the others don't. Peg him at 4-1.

Rutherford, Tom Sneva and Gordon Johncock are lumped in at 7-1. The defending champion would normally be due for better odds, but he has only recently sorted out a balky new car, that is identical to Ruby's machine, but inexplicably plagued with handling troubles.

Sneva, a surprise to many but not to car owner Roger Penske, has a good piece of equipment and knows how to drive it. If he's around at the end of 500 miles, he should be somewhere in the first three.

Johncock has the second fastest machine in the field, and the only question is will it last? The new Goosen-Drake-Sparks engines built especially for Johncock and teammate Wally Dallenbach have been expiring fairly regularly in practice so far this month.

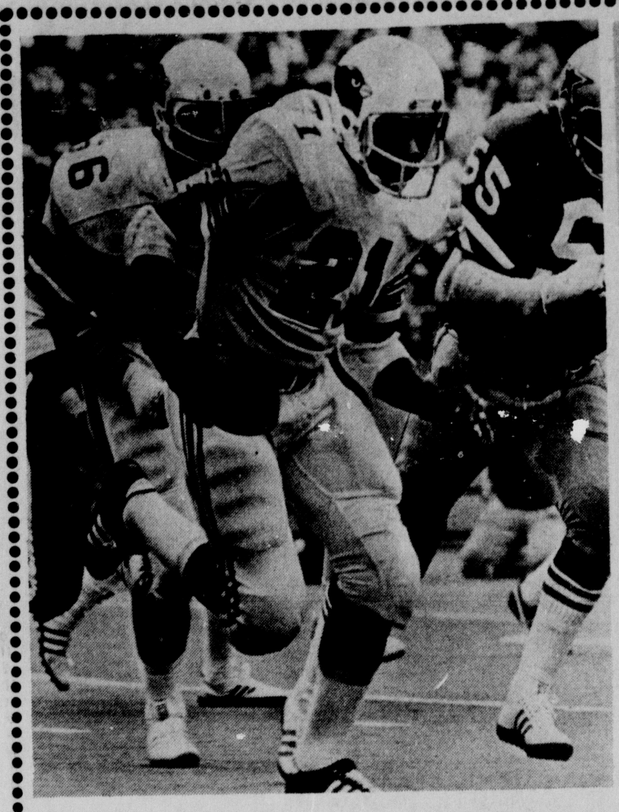

Al Unser, a two-time winner, always saves his best for Indianapolis, but the 10-1 odds on him reflect the troubles he's had in past years. Teammate Mario Andretti is back at 12-1, taking into account his ninth row starting position.

Mike Mosley, a consensus pick to win a big one someday, is sandwiched between Al and Mario at 11-1.

Dallenbach, considered the dark horse of the race, is at 14-1. He could be higher in the survey, except that he hasn't done the development work that Johncock has.

A trio at 15-1 are the longest shots taken this year — Billy Vukovich, Jimmy Caruthers and Jerry Grant. The lines: Vukovich "new ride working well," Caruthers "quiet, fast, efficient," and Grant "determination and running good."

Of course, others in the 33-car field have a chance to win, especially if hot weather prevails, as is forecast. Hot, humid conditions should be toughest on the fastest cars, where the engines will be working at higher temperatures and more likely to fail.

St. Louis football Cardinals star running back — Terry Metcalf will be in Sikeston Saturday to meet with his fans and giveaway authographed pictures at J. C. Penney in the Kingsway Plaza shopping center. He'll be there from 1 to 3 p.m.

Decathlon Nationals at Cape

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The fourth National AAU-Chevrolet Junior Olympic Decathlon Championship will take place at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, Mo., July 18-19. The announcement came today from the Amateur Athletic Union.

The nation's top young athletes between 14 and 17 years of age will compete in both pentathlon and decathlon events.

Both the decathlon event for boys and the pentathlon event for girls will have senior and intermediate divisions. The senior division is for 16-17 year olds while 14-15 year olds will compete in the intermediate division.

The decathlon events will take place over the two-day spread while all the pentathlon events will be held on July 19.

Sam Giambelluca of Poplar Bluff, Mo., National AAU Junior Olympic Track and Field Chairman, will serve as meet director. Assisting Giambelluca will be John Bach of Festus, Mo.

Last year's championships took place at Kansas State University in Manhattan, Kans. The first and second Junior Olympic decathlon nationals took place in Philadelphia, Pa.

The AAU Junior Olympic program involves millions of teenage athletes in 16 sports, including aquatics, basketball, bobsled, boxing, gymnastics, judo, track, trampoline, weightlifting, wrestling and volleyball.

The Junior Olympics is a sports development program of the Amateur Athletic Union, made possible by the Chevrolet Motor Division and its dealers.

Smith ready

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outfielder Reggie Smith, out of action for two weeks with a recurring back injury, will be available for pinchitting duties tonight when the St. Louis Cardinals open a three-game series in Los Angeles.

An examination earlier this week in St. Louis revealed that Smith had "an old irritation in the lower back which can become aggravated from time to time," according to club physician Dr. Stan London.

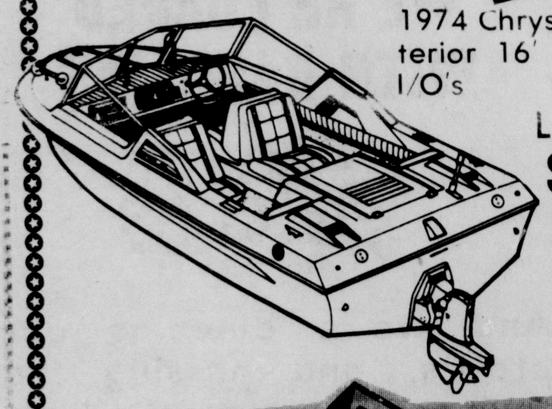

Cardinal officials announced Smith's reunion with the team Thursday, but said he would see only limited action while treatment of the ailment continued.

Manager Red Schoendienst, meanwhile, said he would start newcomer Don Hahn in centerfield tonight and Luis Melendez in right in hopes the change can add some punch to the Cardinal attack.

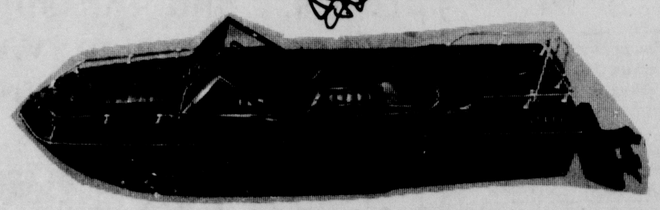

Hahn, 26, joined St. Louis as a free agent earlier this week after being released by the Philadelphia Phillies to make room for Richie Allen. Hahn, a six-year veteran, has a .238 career batting average.

Decathlon Nationals at Cape

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The fourth National AAU-Chevrolet Junior Olympic Decathlon Championship will take place at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, Mo., July 18-19. The announcement came today from the Amateur Athletic Union.

The nation's top young athletes between 14 and 17 years of age will compete in both pentathlon and decathlon events.

Both the decathlon event for boys and the pentathlon event for girls will have senior and intermediate divisions. The senior division is for 16-17 year olds while 14-15 year olds will compete in the intermediate division.

The decathlon events will take place over the two-day spread while all the pentathlon events will be held on July 19.

Sam Giambelluca of Poplar Bluff, Mo., National AAU Junior Olympic Track and Field Chairman, will serve as meet director. Assisting Giambelluca will be John Bach of Festus, Mo.

Last year's championships took place at Kansas State University in Manhattan, Kans. The first and second Junior Olympic decathlon nationals took place in Philadelphia, Pa.

The AAU Junior Olympic program involves millions of teenage athletes in 16 sports, including aquatics, basketball, bobsled, boxing, gymnastics, judo, track, trampoline, weightlifting, wrestling and volleyball.

The Junior Olympics is a sports development program of the Amateur Athletic Union, made possible by the Chevrolet Motor Division and its dealers.

Smith ready

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outfielder Reggie Smith, out of action for two weeks with a recurring back injury, will be available for pinchitting duties tonight when the St. Louis Cardinals open a three-game series in Los Angeles.

An examination earlier this week in St. Louis revealed that Smith had "an old irritation in the lower back which can become aggravated from time to time," according to club physician Dr. Stan London.

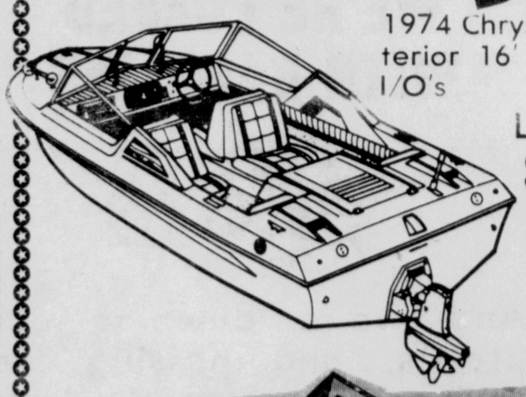

Cardinal officials announced Smith's reunion with the team Thursday, but said he would see only limited action while treatment of the ailment continued.

Manager Red Schoendienst, meanwhile, said he would start newcomer Don Hahn in centerfield tonight and Luis Melendez in right in hopes the change can add some punch to the Cardinal attack.

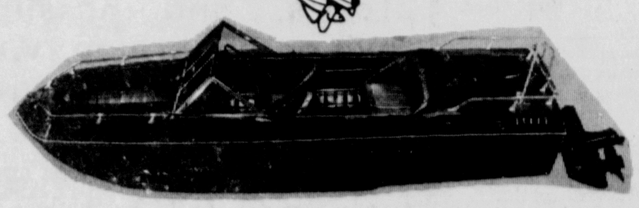

Hahn, 26, joined St. Louis as a free agent earlier this week after being released by the Philadelphia Phillies to make room for Richie Allen. Hahn, a six-year veteran, has a .238 career batting average.

1. In Memoriam

IN MEMORY OF MRS. NELLIE McINTOSH

It was eight years ago today
Our Dear Mother passed away
Shes in Heaven up above
Where we send her all our love
No one knows better Lord than thee
How we miss her constantly
But we know that you knew best
When you called her home to rest
Every night I say a prayer
Hoping I will see her again up there
She had so many heartaches and pain
But kept smiling just the same
No more troubles no more trials
She is with the angels up above
Where we send her all our love
You had your troubles down here below
All is wonderful up there I know
I miss you more each day your gone
But I try to forget and sing a song
But some day on the other shore
We will meet again to part no more
Sadly missed by her children and all who knew her.

Fletcher Withrow, Daughter

You had your troubles down here below
All is wonderful up there I know
I miss you more each day your gone
But I try to forget and sing a song
But some day on the other shore
We will meet again to part no more
Sadly missed by her children and all who knew her.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

---

it's another great day ©

A day that begins with breakfast cooked and devoured out of doors can't be anything but great! Campers know this . . . and so do would-be campers!

And the would-be campers are reading the Classified columns of their newspaper every day . . . looking for the equipment they need to join the growing movement to the great outdoors!

If you have camping equipment you no longer use . . . or if you've bought a newer, more sophisticated camper, there's a ready market for what's old to you. Tap that market with a low-cost ad in Classified.

First Methodist to get new pastor

Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright of Columbia, a native of Malden and former Dexter pastor, has consented to accept the pastorate of First United Methodist Church, North Kingshighway at North Main Street, succeeding the Rev. Otto L. Dvorak, who will become pastor of a church in Blue Springs, a suburb of Kansas City.

The official appointment of the Rev. Dr. Fulbright as minister of First Methodist is scheduled at the close of the annual Missouri-East Conference meeting on June 1 at Fayette. He and Mrs. Fulbright plan to move to Sikeston that week, and he will deliver his first sermon from the First Methodist pulpit on June 8.

The Rev. Arthur Fulbright

The Rev. Dr. Fulbright is presently minister of the Wilkes Boulevard United Methodist Church in Columbia, where he has served for six years.

In addition to Dexter, where he was pastor of First United Methodist Church in the early 1960s, and Malden, the Rev. Dr. Fulbright also had boyhood ties with Morehouse, where his father -- the late Dr. William A. Fulbright Sr. -- had a very successful ministry as pastor of Rauch-Spence Memorial United Methodist Church many years ago. His mother, now Mrs. R. H. Fowler, lives in her hometown of Malden.

Also, while he was pastor of the Dexter church, his daughter Pamela Ruth (now Mrs. James Schmidtke of Alma, Mich.) was elected queen of the Sikeston Cotton Carnival on Sept. 30, 1963. During his ministry in Dexter, the church erected a new church plant.

The Rev. Dr. Fulbright attended Southeast Missouri State Teachers College (now Southeast Missouri State University) at Cape Girardeau, McKendree Methodist College and Graduate School at Lebanon, Ill., and Greenville College and Theological School in Greenville, Ill., where he earned bachelor of arts, bachelor of science in education, bachelor of theology and doctor of theology degrees.

On Oct. 11, 1941, he married Geraldine Bell at Greenville, Mo. In addition to Mrs. Schmidtke, a nurse, the Fulbrights have two other daughters, Mrs. James L. (Marilyn Elizabeth) Clements and Mrs. Kenneth (LaRhondda Lynn) Powers, both employed as teachers and in real estate sales at Mountain Home, Ark.

He is a member of the Order of St. Luke of the United Methodist Church, Masons, Scottish Rite, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Downtown Optimist Club of Columbia, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans.

The Rev. Dr. Fulbright was the recipient of the 1970 Citizenship Citation Award in Columbia and an honor plaque presented in 1972 by Woodmen of the World for commendabel service to Columbia and the surrounding area.

He also is a member of the Missouri American Legion Back to God Department and has had an active interest in both Boy and Girl Scouting, including membership in the scouting fraternity, Mic-O-Say. Other interests include ecology, camping, hunting, fishing, hiking and canoeing, and he is a writer, author and speaker.

Theologically, the Rev. Dr. Fulbright says it is his desire to "preach and teach with a kind benevolent authoritarianism ... according to the teachings of the Holy Scriptures;" and he is a consistent opponent of "situation ethics," which insists there are no absolute rules of right and wrong and that what is relatively good or bad depends on circumstances.

During his ministry in Columbia, the Wilkes Boulevard church -- an old church in an old neighborhood -- has modernized its facilities and has hosted meetings of three groups of Alcoholics Anonymous, Boy and Girl Scout troops and the non-denominational Wilkes Boulevard Men's Club.

Church aid projects may go on in Vietnam

NEW YORK (AP) — A Texan who had straddled the Vietnam war to dispense church aid to people on both sides says he's confident U.S. Christians can resume support of assistance projects soon under the new government in the south.

Many Americans have been "surprised, shaken, even frustrated" at the openness of the new South Vietnamese administration, says the Rev. Ernest L. Fogg, a church worker in Indochina for more than 20 years.

"A lot of people had mistaken impressions," he added in an interview, noting the previous widespread contentions in this country that the fall of the Saigon regime would mean a Communist-imposed bloodbath.

"Actually, the transition has meant hope for the first time in 30 years for most people there," he said. "Surprise and hope."

The Rev. Mr. Fogg, 55, director of the World Council of Churches' Fund for Recociliation in Indochina, was here this week for consultation with church officials before heading back to his post in Bangkok, Thailand.

In it, he hasserved as a sort of middleman between North and South Vietnam, dealing with people in both, channeling church aid to projects on both sides.

He said he expects word soon from the new South Vietnamese leaders clearing the way for restoring support to projects American churches had carried on under the former government, but on new terms.

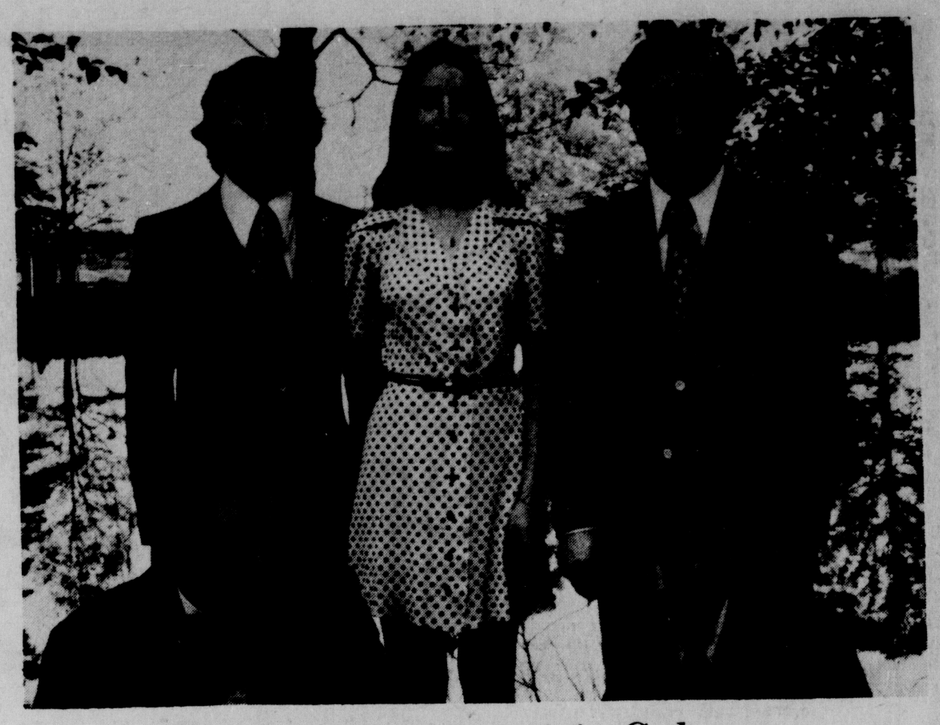

"The programs no longer will be, and ought not to be, managed by westerners from the outside," he said. "The Vietnamese church staff deserves the opportunity to take on that responsibility."

However, challenging assumptions made by some churchmen about the situation, he said, "It's not the end of Christian mission in that country."

"I'm practically certain the churches of the West will be able to continue work in South Vietnam, in reconstruction, reconciliation and humanitarian projects, if the churches of the West are willing."

He is awaiting replies to written inquiries on the matter delivered to South Vietnam's new leaders, and said he expects an affirmative answer within 10 days, judging from past experiences with them.

"They're their own people and are very vehement about that," he said. He added that while they use Marxist indoctrination, they strongly reject any tie-in with international communism, and take an independent stance.

Puxico group to visit Calvary

The Rev. Billy Reece and the Redemptionaires of Puxico will be featured in both the morning and evening services Sunday at Calvary Assembly Church, located at the corner of Scott and Trotter streets. The Rev. Mr. Reece has been preaching and singing for severaly years in churches of many denominations.

Quartet to sing in 2 churches

The Soul Winners Quartet of St. Louis will be featured in gospel singing programs at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Sikeston Pentecostal Holiness Church, 328 W. North St., and at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the Essex Assembly of God Church. Also on the program Saturday night in Sikeston will be the Jenkins Family of Sikeston and the Brown Family of Charleston.

'Alleluia' scheduled for encore

"Alleluia!", a praise musical by Bill Gaither, will be repeated at 7 p.m. Sunday in First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, according to Associate Pastor Len Meyers, who directs Redemption Song, the singing group composed of First Assembly choir members that presented the musical last weekend.

Meyers said numerous requests for an encore performance were heard after the two well-received performances Saturday and Sunday nights.

Members of the singing group are Joan Bixler of Canalou and Max Teague, Peggy Teague, Jane Whitten, Russ Whitten, Jean Frala, Vicki Walters, Bob Walters, Sharon Bryant, Judy Meyers, Sharon Savage and Meyers of Sikeston. Others featured in the performance are Don Castleberry, Charles Patterson Sr., Mrs. Loren Wooten and Nyman "Matt" Matthews.

The accompaniment features full orchestration on tape.

Miner youth group visits area churches

The youth of Miner Baptist Church, located at the intersection of Highway 62 and Route H, are active in many areas of Christian activity. Approximately 30 young people of the church have formed two choirs, a mixed quartet, a young men's quartet and an octet and have been traveling to other area churches to singing and give testimonials concerning their faith in Christ.

The churches visited so far include the Blodgett Baptist Church, East Prairie First Baptist Church, Bement Baptist Church, Trinity Baptist Church and First Baptist Church of Sikeston.

During June their schedule is: June 1, Calvary Baptist Church, Dexter, 7 p.m.; June 8, Temple Baptist Church, Sikeston, 7 p.m.; June 15, First Missionary Baptist Church, Bertrand, 7 p.m.; and June 29, Southside Baptist Church, Charleton, 7 p.m.

This group of dedicated youth has been instrumental in helping many young people in the area to become Christians and, as they put it, "turn on to Jesus for a natural high."

Darrell Chapman, Route Two, is the youth director. Mrs. Don Rogers and Mrs. Don Self are the choir directors and Teresa Self and Lee Ann Matthews are pianists.

Mike McReynolds and Dewayne Self are choir and congregational leaders.

The Rev. Grady Etheridge is pastor.

First Assembly plans 2-week conference

The Rev. K. L. Claycomb of Tallahassee, Fla., will be the guest speaker for a two-week conference on the Holy Spirit to be held at First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, at 7 o'clock each evening beginning next Wednesday, according to the Rev. Loren Wooten, pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Claycomb is a noted speaker with a broad scope of experience. He has served as pastor, statewide official in in the Assemblies of God, and as an eveangelist he has ministered as a convention speakers, Bible teacher in camps across the country, but is best known for his knowledge and teaching concerning the ministries of the Holy Spirit.

He has authored a study book on this theme that is being widely used and recognized in the Assemblies of God and others interested in the charismatic movement.

Gospel according to Mahalia

By David Poling

"He just wanted to tell her again how wonderful she'd been, how remarkable Silent Night was; had everybody in church in tears. 'How do you do it?' Mahalia fixed the full force of her being on him. 'DON'T YOU KNOW?' she said in disgust. This man been around her all this much, and don't know her singing's from God."

—from "Just Mahalia, Baby"

She was just another one of those little black kids (they used to call Negroes) growing up in New Orleans and singing Jesus Loves Me in Mt. Moriah Baptist Church. She believed the gospel message, believed in Dr. Jesus, and shaped the history of religious music along the way. A half century later she recorded "Silent Night" like it never had been sung before and the royalty check the first year was $25,000. Yet she turned down bigger offers and rejected larger opportunities because they weren't in the gospel, wouldn't please the Lord. She shunned commercial theater and said no thanks to the night club circuit.

The many worlds of Mahalia Jackson come into focus in this gigantic book by Laurraine Goreau. The author put about seven years of her life into this project for a fellow citizen of New Orleans and it is a worthy investment.

Whatever world you are into, you will find some zip and excitement: gospel music, civil rights, celebrity style, or a woman living her faith with tenacious courage. Of course, I like the last but it takes all the other parts to make it work.

In mid-career Mahalia wanted a nice home in a Chicago suburb, Chatham Village. The price was steep for this all-white neighborhood but Miss Jackson paid cash to move into this quiet, posh bedroom community of Chicago. Then the threats, the obscene phone calls, the go-to-hell unsigned letters. Some wild man shot through her picture window. It was wild but she stayed and survived and put up this plaque on the front porch:

DEAR LORD
IN THIS HOUSE YOU ARE WANTED
AND YOU ARE WELCOME

Her first choice was gospel. Gospel music and never letting the church down. When she was booked into the Newport Jazz Festival, an Episcopal parish invited her to be in the morning worship service. She accepted. The promoters nearly fainted — giving all that talent away, for nothing! "Listen," said Mahalia, "when you stop singing free in church on Sunday, you are not a real gospel singer anymore."

Another time DOWNBEAT announced that Mahalia had placed among the top four in their jazz vocalist poll, right up there with Ella Fitzgerald, Billie Holiday and Sarah Vaughan. "Jazz! They're beginning to analyze me in a way I don't like," she roared. "I don't want but one vote and that's from Jesus".

"Just Mahalia, Baby" (Word) is an all-summer book for this writer. When she gave gospel concerts in Japan, she made grown men cry. Wrote Hisamitsu Noguchi, renowned music critic, "Her gospel songs have not only the perfect music beauty but also the very persuasive power by her belief . . . though I am not a Christian, I could not stop running tears, tears of joy."

The gospel according to Mahalia is a happy song.

THE BIBLE

188. Young Joash Becomes King

When Athaliah, the mother of King Ahaziah of Judah, learned that her son was dead, she attempted to kill all of his children. The year-old son Joash, however, was rescued by Jehosheba, a sister of King Ahaziah. She stole the boy from among the king's children as they waited to be slain, and hid him and his nurse in a storeroom of the Temple where they lived for six years.

When Joash was 7 years of age, Jehoiada the priest swore the officers of the palace guard and the queen's bodyguard to secrecy, and showed them the king's son. He then instructed them to guard the young boy. "And he brought forth the king's son, and put the crown upon him, and gave him the testimony; and they made him king; and anointed him; and they clapped their hands, and said, God save the king." (II Kings 11:12)

Athaliah rushed in and shouted treason, but Jehoiada calmly instructed the guard to execute her outside the Temple. Then he made a covenant between the Lord, the king, and the people, that they would be the Lord's people.

"A Moon For the Misbegotten" - Written in 1944, this was Eugene O'Neill's last play and thought to be, by some critics, his greatest drama. Rich in Irish humor and enormously moving, the play concentrates on O'Neill's basic theme of illusions that mask the truth in order to make life bearable. Colleen Dewhurst stars as the strong, compassionate Josie Hogan, and Jason Robards portrays the haunted, alcoholic James tyrone, a character based on O'Neill's brother Jamie

"A Moon For the Misbegotten" - Written in 1944, this was Eugene O'Neill's last play and thought to be, by some critics, his greatest drama. Rich in Irish humor and enormously moving, the play concentrates on O'Neill's basic theme of illusions that mask the truth in order to make life bearable. Colleen Dewhurst stars as the strong, compassionate Josie Hogan, and Jason Robards portrays the haunted, alcoholic James tyrone, a character based on O'Neill's brother Jamie

You're never too old to hear better.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. - A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A replica of the smallest Beltone aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Try it to see how it is worn in the privacy of your own home without cost or obligation of any kind. It's yours to keep, free. It weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. No wires lead from body to head.

These models are free, so we suggest you write, for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation.

CALL 334-4200 for information or write Beltone Hearing Aid Center, 1901 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Mo. 63701.

A new public affairs program produced by WSIL-TV, Harrisburg, Illinois (KPOB-TV) is entitled "Our Schools Today," and will be seen from 5 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursdays. "Our Schools Today" has been designed as a probe into the affairs of many area communities, and the problems associated with the various schools and school systems located throughout parts of Southern Illinois, Kentucky, and Missouri. On "Our Schools Today" you'll be seeing and listening to many of your friends, neighbors, and local citizens discussing your schools, and the problems, and solutions.

For an in-depth look into the educational problems of your community, you are invited to watch this new series, "Our Schools Today." Guest scheduled for the week of May 26-29th are:
Mon. May 26: Dr. Mark Scully, President of Southeast Missouri State University, Cape Girardeau, Mo.
Tues. May 27: Gary Schaefer, Instructor at High School, Sikeston High School, Sikeston, Mo.
Thur. May 29: Dr. Frank Wiley, Super. of Schools, Jackson, Mo.
